The Big Cut-Up

Queen Inspects German Guard

Bonn Cheers 'Koenigin Elizabeth'

BONN (Reuters) — Enthusiastic West German crowds delayed Britain's Queen Elizabeth for 20 minutes on her drive to Brunel Castle Tuesday night for a state dinner and the most glittering social occasion in post-war West German history.

The normally immaculate royal timetable was thrown into disarray on the first day of the Queen's 11-day state visit.

Crowds along the road from the mountaintop Petersberg Hotel, where the Queen and Prince Philip are staying, forced the motorcade to slow to a crawl on the way up to the castle north of Bonn.

SHOULD BE UNITED

West German leaders welcomed the Queen as she mounted the magnificent main staircase of the castle for the state dinner and reception.

Speaking at the state dinner, the Queen told the West German leaders Britain "wholeheartedly supports your national wish for peaceful reunification."

Britain believes, she said, that Europe should be united on as broad a basis as possible.

SIGN OF TRUST

In welcoming the sovereign, West German President Heinrich Lübke said: "We regard your visit as a sign of the growing trust in our people. We believe that the German people have clearly demonstrated their determination to make up for the past..."

Crowds 10- and 12-persons deep cheered the British monarch as "Koenigin Elizabeth" in this small capital city where she drove to call on President Lübke.

TOSSED FLOWERS

They tossed flowers at her car, spilled into the roadway and delayed the royal procession by seven minutes.

Police estimated that 100,000 persons—half the local population—lined the roads and streets.

Metchosin, Sooke Go 'Up-Island' in Recarved Election Map

By IAN STREET

Some radical changes in B.C. federal ridings are recommended by the electoral boundaries commission headed by Mr. Justice H. W. McInnes. On Vancouver Island major change is confined to reducing the size of Esquimalt-Sanich constituency by adding Metchosin, Port Renfrew, Sooke and Cobble Hill districts to an enlarged Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands riding.

Changes proposed in mainland ridings, however, virtually mean redrawing the electoral map of the province.

The commission recommendations will increase the number of B.C. federal seats to 23, one more than at present, to meet population growth.

Six existing ridings will disappear and in redrawing boundaries the commission has put 11 new names on the province's federal electoral map.

Maps and detailed descriptions of boundary changes are on pages 6 through 11.

Mr. Justice McInnes declined to comment Tuesday on the changes proposed by the commission. "I do not want to make it appear that we now have closed minds on the subject, because we have not," the chairman said.

Public hearings on the proposed electoral changes will be held in eight centres across the province starting in Vancouver June 23.

The schedule includes Victoria Sept. 14, Nanaimo Sept.

20, and other dates in Vernon, Kamloops, Prince Rupert, Prince George and Nelson.

Anyone wishing to be heard on the proposed changes must make application to the commission in writing at least 23 days before the hearing date.

In the Lower Mainland Vancouver Burrard disappears and is replaced by two smaller ridings, Vancouver

Centre and Vancouver East. Coast-Capilano is wiped out with the southern urban portion of the riding becoming Vancouver North Shore.

The rest is lumped together with portions of Kamloops, Skeena and Cariboo to form Coast-Chilcotin.

Increase Sparks Student Protest

Williamson

FEES 'DRIVING US TO REVOLT'

University of Victoria student leaders are planning a public meeting tonight to protest the $56 increase in fees announced by the board of governors Tuesday.

"They're driving us to revolt," said students' council president Paul Williamson.

He urged all students and interested members of the public to attend the meeting, which will be held in the Student Union Building on the Gordon Head campus at 7:30 p.m.

Dr. Taylor and a member of the board of governors have been invited to attend.

The increase jumps the fees to $428 for a year—an increase of $108 in two years.

"It's too much," said Mr. Williamson. "We've tried every reasonable approach—means surveys, briefs, calm discussion. But if we can't obtain a fair deal, we're going to have to turn to other means."

NOTHING RASH

He indicated that high school students would be welcome at the meeting tonight. "We want anyone who's interested in the problem," he said.

"We're not going to do anything rash until we hear what Dr. Taylor and the board of governors have to say—but we're not happy."

ALL THE SAME

In announcing the raise, Dr. Taylor said that UVic summer school fees would remain at $75 per course, but would be raised next year to bring them in line with the $100 charge at UBC.

The winter session fee increase was identical at all three B.C. universities. And fees remain the same at all universities.

RATE DOUBLED

UBC in addition announced $44 to $80 increases for undergraduates in other than arts, sciences and education and virtually doubled post-graduate fees.

The other universities have not these faculties which range through law, medicine or agriculture among other things.

UBC post-graduate fees will double to $800 from $422. Some 400 students embarking on graduate programs in September will pay $300 a year. But the present 800 graduate students will complete their studies under the present payment schedule of $372 for the first year plus $50 for each additional year.

REDUCED GRANT

Dr. Taylor cited a declining federal grant and increased operating costs as the basis for the fee raise. The federal grant has decreased from $210 per student to $160 per student since 1962-63.

The provincial grants, on the other hand, have increased so that even with the fee boost, the student will actually be paying a lesser percentage of the cost of his education in the coming year.

BELOW AVERAGE

This year, according to Dr. Taylor, the student paid 27.6 per cent of the cost of his university education; next year he will pay 26.6 per cent.

Dr. Taylor also pointed out that the increase must be compared with increases of $100 at McGill, $75 at Manitoba, $75 at New Brunswick, and $50 at Nova Scotia.

Even with the increase, fees here will not be above the Canadian average.

Calling the increase "unavoidable," Dr. Taylor said it is offset somewhat by scholarships, bursaries and loans.

"With these forms of assistance available, no qualified student strongly desiring a uni-

Labor 'Disturbed And Distressed'

VANCOUVER—The announcement of fee increases at B.C. universities drew immediate fire from labor leaders.

Jack Moore, western regional president of the 32,000-member International Woodworkers of America (IWA), withdrew his support from the tri-universities capital fund.

Secretary of the 100,000-member B.C. Federation of Labor (CLC), Patrick O'Neal said the universities had seen fit to "penalize" students by raising fees to find money. The federation was "disturbed and distressed."

Mr. Moore withdrew from the fund drive earlier, but continued to give it his personal support.

In a letter to R. W. Robinson, chairman of the fund, he said he gave his support "because I recognized the tremendous need in this province for advanced education."

"I accepted the assurances of the tri-universities capital fund officials and university presidents that conjecture about tuition fee increases for students was based on mere rumors and were not to be accepted or substantiated."

He said many working men will be unable to send their sons and daughters to university because of the increases.

"I cannot continue to recommend, even on a personal basis, that working men and women should dig into their own pockets to help build institutions from which many of their sons and daughters will be barred because of this additional financial barrier."

Murray Drew, IWA business agent in Victoria who also withdrew from the fund some time ago, said "it is very unfortunate this has to happen in a province as wealthy as B.C."

North Viet Nam

Bombings Resume As Feelers Fail

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. warplanes resumed bombing raids against North Viet Nam Tuesday after a six-day lull marked by reported Washington diplomatic efforts, apparently unavailing, to judge Ho Chi Minh's Communist regime toward peace talks.

Twenty U.S. Navy fighter-bombers and 19 F-8 Crusader jets from the U.S. 7th Fleet carrier Coral Sea hit a petroleum storage area at Phu Quai, 125 miles south of Hanoi, North Viet Nam's capital. Pilots said they left the area severely damaged and burning.

DISAPPOINTED

A U.S. state department spokesman, Robert J. McKinstry, told a Washington press conference the U.S. government was disappointed at the failure of North Viet Nam to respond in any way to the suspension.

Scornful comment from North Viet Nam's foreign ministry implied rejection of the reported peace bid.

In London, senior Western officials said the U.S. had made an official approach to North Viet Nam through a third country during the lull. They did not identify the go-between.

Sure of Victory?

Junta Leader Turns Back U.S., UN Plans

From UPI, CP, AP

Santo Domingo's junta leader Maj. Gen. Antonio Imbert Barrera, apparently confident of a military victory over rebel forces, has rejected both a reported United States plan for a coalition government and a United Nations plea for a cease-fire.

Bitter fighting continued between the rival Dominican factions in the city's downtown section, with U.S. military spokesmen fearing that a further advance by junta forces would place American troops in the direct line of fire.

One rebel spokesman has said "If the American troops oppose us we will set fire to the city and leave them a Santo Domingo in ruins."

A U.S. spokesman said American officers were working with junta forces in one area, but insisted they were there only to direct fire away from U.S. positions.

Cuban Premier Fidel Castro was overheard by Miami radio to say the landing of U.S. forces in the Dominican Republic has turned into a "true political debacle for the Yankees."

U.S. action, he went on, has not only put the Organization of American States "in a ridiculous situation because the imperialists didn't even consult with them," but also has put U.S. Latin allies on the spot.

In Ottawa External Affairs Minister Martin told the Commons that an official of his department was sent to the Dominican Republic a few days ago to report regularly on the crisis there.

The United States told the Organization of American States

that President Johnson's special mission in Santo Domingo was working to establish a "broadly-representative government based on democratic, constitutional principles" and free from Communist or right-wing threats.

Big Deal Brewing

Another Wheat Sale Pending with China

By FRASER KELLY

Colonial Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Canada is on the verge of another huge wheat deal with Red China, it was learned Tuesday.

Officials of the Canadian Wheat Board are in Hong Kong negotiating the sale, believed to involve some 56,000,000 bushels.

It was rumored here the deal had been closed in the past three days. But an official of the department of trade and commerce said today there are still "substantial" matters to be completed.

It is believed the sale involves grades four and five of Canadian wheat now selling at about $1.78 a bushel.

ODD FACT

The sale is being negotiated under a three-year agreement signed with the Chinese Aug. 1, 1963.

Under the agreement the Chinese are permitted to buy a minimum of 112,000,000 and a maximum of 187,000,000 bushels by paying 25 per cent on delivery and the rest over 18 months.

So far they have bought 107,500,000 bushels in four separate sales.

Grain Sales Threatened

CALGARY (UPI) — A. T. Baker, general manager of the Alberta Wheat Pool warned Tuesday that the threatened grain-handling strike in Vancouver and New Westminster could jeopardize pending wheat sales to China.

About 450 Vancouver area grain elevator operators have voted in favor of strike action, but no date has been set.

Shah of Iran

A King's Feast

Canada Couldn't Provide It

OTTAWA (UPI)—Canada had to turn to Tunisia to find the main course for an Ottawa dinner Thursday to be given by the Shah of Iran.

The Shah, 45, his third wife the empress Farah, 38, and an entourage of 15 persons arrive here today for an eight-day Canadian tour. Home for the Iranian royal couple during their two-night stay here is the castle-like Chateau Laurier,

Hotel chef Angelo Casagrande had to reach outside the country to fill the menu for a dinner planned by the Shah for Governor-General George Vanier and other Canadian dignitaries Thursday night.

The menu calls for 25 baby lambs, and under the Shah's orders they could not weigh more than 15 pounds each.

Local sheep herders offered their best but Canadian lambs proved too pudgy —weighing in at 17 pounds plus.

Chef Casagrande finally found what the Shah wanted at Fort Worth, Tex.

The lambs were flown here Tuesday afternoon. They will be roasted over an open flame and served: one lamb per six persons.

Lamb, explained experts here, is a basic Muslim meat, and milk-lamb—the treat the Shah will give his Canadian guests—is a choice Iranian dish.

Students Protest Fees

verity education will be denied the opportunity because of the fee increase."

Mr. Williamson took strong exception to this: "I object strenuously to using loans as an excuse. Students have enough problems without carrying a debt of up to $3,000. A Quebec student need repay only 50 per cent of money he borrows."

PRICE-FIXING

He also criticized the fact that all three universities in this province will have the same fees.

"The statement about price-fixing by Larry Devlin (former council president) has obviously been proven correct. There is no reason for the fees to be the same; they are different institutions with different facilities and different curricula. Even entrance standards are different."

NO OTHER WAY

Dr. Taylor replied that since the degrees offered by the universities have equal status, the fees should be equal. "It could not be any other way. If you had two students from Vancouver, one going to Simon Fraser and one to UBC, and the UBC fees were higher, it would mean that parents of the UBC boy would be subsidizing the other student through taxes."

"I want students to come to UBC not because the fees are lower, but because the education is better."

Dr. Taylor could give no assurance that fees would not be increased again next year. "I feel the denials by university officials of charges of collusion and price-fixing were outrageous falsehoods, said former student president Larry Devlin."

SCHOLARSHIP FUND

"I hope the university authorities will send a representative to tonight's meeting, at least out of common courtesy."

Mr. Devlin, this year's graduating class president, said he may recommend to his executive a scholarship fund be set up with the $6,000 collected from the class for the tri-universities capital fund.

POLICY ATTACKED

"We must re-examine our position in view of the fee increase," he said.

Mr. Devlin attacked the three universities' "stand together" policy with fees.

"It is simply untrue to say the three universities should have equal fee structure when the public already supports them on varying basis."

BALANCE VARY

"The University of Victoria gets about 62 per cent of its operating costs while UBC only gets about 40 per cent."

"Salaries at each of the universities are at varying levels. Therefore, if those giving instruction are paid at different levels, those receiving instruction should pay at different levels," he said.

A recent means survey showed 50 per cent of parents of students attending university have earned more than $6,000, Mr. Devlin said.

"Already the trend is towards education for the financially able rather than for the academically able."

"What is more peridious is that the board of governors has refused to interpret the fee increase to the public and the students," Mr. Devlin said.

NOT EXPLAINED

"It has not said why the fee increase is necessary or where the funds will be used."

Students have been pushed to the breaking point, he said. "If there is not a change in policy during the coming year, the students will revolt."

FEE TOPS INCOME

Gordon Pollard, student council member, pointed out the $400,000 being paid to a professional fund-raising firm was more than the added income from the fee increase for the combined students of Simon Fraser University and the University of Victoria.

"The added income for the two universities will be about $336,400."

"If the provincial government could not provide adequate funds, surely it could have arranged for a civil service commission to organize the drive for less than $100,000," said Mr. Pollard.

However, Cyrus McLean, co-chairman of the Three Universities Capital Fund Drive said he hopes prospective donors to the fund will not use the fee increase as an excuse not to give.

He said it must be remembered that the fund drive has nothing to do with operating expenses.

"We are raising money to build buildings."

"NOT HAPPY"

Jim Higby, another councillor, said that "the increase didn't come as a surprise, but we're not happy."

"I wish they had announced in during the term so that students could raise an effective protest."

"We'll protest right through the summer," Mr. Williamson said, "and right up to the opening of the legislature."

"If we don't get satisfaction, we must think about some form of protest in connection with the opening of the legislature."

IMPACT FEARED

Mr. Pollard feared the possible impact on high school students.

"The students in Grade 12 are the ones who are going to feel it," he pointed out. "They have only two months to work. If they can get a job, and it is well-nigh impossible to raise this much in that time."

A student council spokesman at UBC said students don't intend to take fee increases "lying down."

FORM UNDECEDED

"We are prepared to make strong protests over this fee increase," said Robert Cruise, vice-president of the "Alma Mater Society."

"Just what form the protest will take has not been decided yet."

He said most students are already going into debt each year in pay their way through university.

DEEPER IN DEBT

"Many are getting deeper and deeper into debt each year."

"It's all very well to say loans and bursaries are available to students but what student wants to graduate $2,000 to $3,000 in debt?"

He said the cost to out-of-town students attending UBC has become "astronomical."

"They are the ones who are going to suffer the most. For many of them the fee increase could mean the difference between dropping out and returning each year."

Mafia Chief

Old Feud Cause Of Murder

TRAPANI, Sicily (UPI) — A Sicilian feud, dating back some 40 years, may be behind the murder on his rabbit farm Monday night of Mafia chief, Onofrio Minardo.

Police investigating the gunning down of 65-year-old Minardo suspect the killing may be related to earlier crimes committed by him.

Minardo who tumbled the Canadian House of Commons into dispute last year about his bid to avoid deportation from Canada, had been convicted in absentia by Italian courts for two murders.

He was sentenced to life imprisonment for the crimes, committed in 1919 and 1922.

Born in Sicily, Minardo fled to the United States where he lived for nearly 40 years. He was cited by the Kefauver committee as a narcotics dealer and was described as a member of the Cosa Nostra crime syndicate.

$1,172,000 Awarded Survivors

NEW YORK (AP)—A state Supreme Court jury Tuesday gave a $1,172,000 verdict, including interest, to the family of financier Arnold S. Kirs-by, California killed in an American Airlines crash on March 1, 1962. It was believed the largest death award in state court history. The jetliner plummeted into the Pacific near here, killing all 85 passengers and crew members.

Israel's offer, made by Israeli Premier Levi Eshkol in a speech Monday to the Knesset (parliament) in Jerusalem, proposed direct negotiations for a settlement with the Arab countries.

Bonn Cheers Queen

The welcome dispelled any lingering fears that the German man-in-the-street might be as lukewarm in his reception as the London public was to West Germany's late president Theodor Heuss on his state visit to Britain in 1958.

But there were a few moments of doubt when the Queen, accompanied by Prince Philip, stepped off the royal plane at Walsby Airport outside Bonn to begin the 11-day visit.

A crowd of 5,000 watched in almost dead silence as Elizabeth, in a dress of gold, went through the ceremonies of being greeted by President Lübke, Chancellor Ludwig Erhard, the cabinet and ambassadors of the Commonwealth countries.

Outside the airport, however, such inhibitions disappeared as the Queen was driven to the Petersberg Hotel which was converted into a royal residence for her.

Crowds lined the roads cheering and waving flags of both countries along the 20-mile route from the airport to the hotel—where she will spend two days before visiting six other West German cities and West Berlin.

Elizabeth is the first reigning monarch in pay a state visit to Germany since her great-grandfather, Edward VII, came as the guest of Kaiser Wilhelm in 1909.

All the bitter memories of the two world wars seemed to be forgotten as the Queen drove through Bonn.

CAR STOPPED

At one point the crowds pressed so close the royal car had to stop. The sun roof was opened and the Queen and Philip stood up and waved to the crowd that chanted "Elizabeth, Elizabeth."

On arrival at the presidential villa overlooking the Rhine, the Queen and Lübke exchanged gifts and the Queen presented the president with the royal Order of the Bath.

HISTORIC MOIEL

After spending three-quarters of an hour at the presidential villa the Queen drove back to her hotel—the same hotel British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain stayed during pre-Munich negotiations with Hitler in 1938. It was also the headquarters of the Allied high commissioners after the Second World War.

TIGHT SECURITY

Intense security precautions, including a ban on aircraft flying lower than 2,000 feet, were in force — mostly to protect against over-zealous crowds.

When the Queen called on Lübke she wore the same gold dress and coat and feathered hat. The duke had changed from the uniform of a marshal in the RAF into a dress suit.

On arrival at the presidential villa overlooking the Rhine, the Queen and Lübke exchanged gifts and the Queen presented the president with the royal Order of the Bath.

After spending three-quarters of an hour at the presidential villa the Queen drove back to her hotel—the same hotel British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain stayed during pre-Munich negotiations with Hitler in 1938. It was also the headquarters of the Allied high commissioners after the Second World War.

Police said it was too early yet to compare the reception given Elizabeth with that given French President de Gaulle and the late U.S. president Kennedy. But they all agreed the visit would be a tremendous success.

Election Official's Son Killed by Booby Trap

HAZLETON, Pa. (UPI)—The teen-age son of a local election official was killed Tuesday by an explosion as he started his father's apparently booby-trapped car.

The body of Michael Ruggiero, 17, son of Joseph Ruggiero, a Democratic judge of election, was hurled into the back seat by the blast as he turned on the ignition key of the car, parked a half block from a firehouse used as a polling place.

The boy's father, an employee of a strip mining firm, rushed from the polling place after hearing the blast and dug his son's body out of the smoldering wreckage.

HYSTERICAL

The horrified Ruggiero, cradling his son's body in his arms, screamed desperately for some response from the boy, who apparently was killed instantly.

Ruggiero, 46, and his wife Antoinette, 43, are the parents of seven other children. Mrs. Ruggiero was placed under medical care and sedation at the family home.

A judge of election in Pennsylvania is a private citizen, elected by voters of a ward precinct to oversee the balloting at polling places and settle minor disagreements on election day. There is one at each polling place, with the average wage $15 to $25 for the day.

NO ACCIDENT

Police Chief Frank Uzman, heading the corps of investigators which included local and state police, county detectives and FBI agents, said it was unlikely that Ruggiero had any explosives in the family car.

Uzman said he understood Ruggiero "had some union trouble" about five years ago. He did not elaborate.

The police chief said there would be no official pronouncement on the blast until the wrecked car was examined by explosives experts.

OTHERS TOO

There have been five other explosions during the past two years in this city, once an anthracite mining centre and now moving toward industrial expansion in other fields. One involved a city policeman.

State police said the power of the blast, which demolished the auto and sent parts hurtling through the air, indicated it was from a bomb or dynamite charge.

The boy's clothing was torn off and his trousers were found some 25 feet away from the wreckage.

Ben Gurion said he was "available for the premiership" in a bid to regain the power he gave up when he turned over the office two years ago to Eshkol.

Reds Brand Attache As Hooligan

MOSCOW (CP-Reuters)—The government newspaper Izvestia accused a Canadian military attache in Moscow Tuesday night of drunken "hooliganism" and creating a fracas in a Russian restaurant.

Describing Col. Curtis Greenleaf as "the machine-gunner from Ottawa," Izvestia accused the 48-year-old Montreal native of swearing, uttering anti-Soviet propaganda and making as if to attack a Russian who had asked him to be quiet.

REPRISAL

In Ottawa, officials regarded the articles as a reprisal for the expulsion of two Soviet diplomats from Canada for alleged espionage activities. Izvestia's story appeared 10 days after their expulsion.

The article says the incident occurred in Tambor, Southern Russia, where Curtis was on a trip with three American military attaches.

OTTAWA (CP)—A private bill to incorporate the proposed Laurentide Bank of Canada was talked out in the Commons Tuesday for the second time this session.

Creditist and Social Credit MPs say they won't allow the bill to pass until the Senate approves a similar bill to incorporate the proposed Bank of British Columbia. A Senate committee killed the B.C. bill last year but it has been re-introduced in that chamber.

The Laurentide bill is sponsored by Ron Bastford (L—Vancouver-Burrard).

Revenue, Losses Up for PGE

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Pacific Great Eastern Railway had an operational loss of $235,288 during 1964 despite a 9.8 per cent increase in gross revenues over the previous year.

J. S. Broadbent, vice-president and general manager of the B.C. government-owned line, blamed the loss on poor weather and increased operational costs.

In 1963 the railway reported a net profit of $7,614. The annual report, released here Tuesday, said gross revenues for 1964 totalled a record $29,127,736. Carloadings and tonnage hauled also set new records.

That question by Guy Marcoux (SC—Quebec—Montreal) went unanswered in the Commons Tuesday but an unidentified Conservative cracked:

"They were flooding the hockey rink."

The House erupted in laughter at this back-handed reference to the Lucien Rivard escape in February from Montreal's Bondeux jail. As part of the escape ruse, Rivard told a guard he was going out to flood the rink. It was 40 degrees above zero at the time.

Bank Bill Talked Out

OTTAWA (CP)—A private bill to incorporate the proposed Laurentide Bank of Canada was talked out in the Commons Tuesday for the second time this session.

Barry Mather (NDP—New Westminster) said that some 80 years ago when British Columbia joined Confederation the only banks were branches of those well-established in Central Canada. With the tremendous development of B.C., it was proper that it be granted a chartered bank.

Antoine Belanger (Creditist—Charlevoix) opposed the bill. He moved an amendment that consideration of the bill be postponed for six months.

The amendment and bill never came to a vote. It remains on the order paper for debate later.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 19, 1965

Now the Columbia

AN OFFICIAL start is to be made this week on the construction of the first two of the three treaty dams to be built on the Columbia River. Ceremonies are to take place at the site of the Duncan Lake dam, and then at the Arrow Lake dam, with Premier Bennett representing the province.

More than 100 people are travelling from Vancouver by special train to take part in the ceremonies which are the culmination of the long-drawn-out negotiations that led to the signing of the Columbia Treaty. The dams are being built by Canadians with U.S. money and the eventual benefits will not only be the development of new hydro electric sites in Canada, but also the raising of the all-year-round potential of the many down stream dams now being operated by the Bonneville Power Authority. In addition the creation of the Duncan Lake, the Arrow, and later the Mica dams will considerably ease the flood peril to which the states of Washington and Oregon have been exposed more or less every spring.

It is estimated that despite the flow of new electrical power from the massive hydro-electric development now under construction on the Peace River at Portage Mountain, extra hydro power from the Columbia at Mica Creek will be required by B.C. Hydro as soon as that dam is completed about 1975. As the construction work on the dam will be paid for under the terms of the Columbia Treaty by the United States, it is this Mica power which will represent the extreme benefit to British Columbia in the shape of extremely low cost power.

Until then however there will be a continued labor force requirement on the various Columbia schemes which will go a long way to ensure for the next 15 years at least, a high level of economic prosperity in the province.

The Green Sweeps

BECAUSE SPRAWLING residential development and rising land prices pose a growing threat to the economic viability of greenhouse operations on the Saanich Peninsula, a horticulturist has suggested that the municipalities concerned should zone suitable areas especially for this use.

But meritorious as the proposal may be, it touches on only one aspect of a broader problem, and one of considerable moment not alone to the agricultural industry but to all the people of the Greater Victoria region and, likewise, of the lower Mainland.

The disarming prospect is that the residential pressure and the rising land values on the Peninsula and in the Fraser Valley will squeeze out more than the greenhouse business. Some of the best agricultural land in the province, and scenically some of the most refreshing, is more and more being covered with houses.

Specific potential parks can be saved by purchase without undue burden on the taxpayers, and the Greater Victoria community with provincial help is gratifyingly now moving in this direction. But the green sweeps of farmland—beckoning the subdividers as less expensive to develop than uncultured and rocky property—can these too be preserved in significant quantity, with their dual beneficence of fresh produce for the local market and countryside beauty?

One suggestion put forward in the past toward this end is that nominal values for taxation purposes, uninfluenced by the general price trend, could be placed on farm lands and buildings as long as they were designated and used as such—but with the provision that if the land were subdivided, back-taxes for a relevant period would be due on a substantial portion of the extra subdivision value.

This could be a decided inducement to bona fide farmers to keep their holdings; it might at least retard the creeping tide of urbanity. Perhaps there are too many complications standing in the way of a formula of this kind being adopted, but the idea certainly seems worth a reappraisal by British Columbia's forward-looking minister of municipal affairs and his advisers.

A New Attitude

IT IS ENCOURAGING to note that Mayor Rathie of Vancouver is now convinced that no attempt will be made by B.C. Hydro to get out of the bus business and leave it to the municipalities when the current franchise agreements expire. He sees evidence to back up his belief in several recent actions of the power corporation.

These include the purchase of new buses to replace old equipment in Vancouver and Victoria, the introduction of special fares in the form of Sunday passes and in Vancouver a slack-hours pass for downtown use which Victoria can at least hope to gain later, and Hydro's "origin and destination" survey on the Mainland designed to detect changes in transit usage patterns in the last decade, with a view to improving service.

Such an interest in the maintenance and betterment of the bus systems would hardly be expected of a Crown corporation and the government behind it if they were planning to unload the facilities—and their annual losses—on the local authorities in the next year or two.

Thus, though it may be too early to jump to a firm conclusion that the municipalities have won their battle against being saddled with the whole cost and responsibility of running the buses, there are certainly portents of a reasonable compromise in which the agreements might be renewed on terms recognizing both that Hydro should continue to accept transit losses in its most profitable power markets and that the municipalities should make concessions such as the elimination of franchise fees.

It might be a mistake however for the municipal leaders to settle back for a period of placid waiting. If Hydro has indeed altered its attitude, Mayor Rathie is right in suggesting that negotiations should open soon to settle new terms of operation. Changed minds can always change again.

Washington Calling

Dividing the Intellectuals

By MARQUEE CHILDS from Boston

FOR a president who dreamed of uniting the country behind his policies Lyndon Johnson seems well on the way to dividing opinion along intensely partisan lines. In this centre with its 13 universities and colleges and the complex of new industries grown up around advanced research in these institutions the division is strikingly evident.

The president's sudden action in sending marines into the Dominican Republic seems far more than the rapidly increasing American commitment in Viet Nam to have aroused student opposition and the deep concern of the academic community. From the perspective of Boston it is possible to see two poles of opinion sharply aligned, each being with attitudes hardening at each extreme.

At a "teach-in" at Boston University the other night with most of the area colleges represented an overflow crowd of 2,000 warmly applauded Barrington Moore Jr., a Harvard sociologist, when he said: "We have to stop the business of freedom at home and let's be blunt about it, Johnson is one of them. It is my careful and sober judgment that Johnson is one of the most dangerous men in politics today."

Turner A. Shelton, a spokesman for the state department, got some cheers but far more boos and catcalls when he said, "If you're afraid to fight I don't know how to help you." At one point a faculty adviser took the microphone from Shelton to appeal to the students to allow Shelton to be heard. The "teach-in" went on without interruption until 7 a.m.

More significant than this uproarious outpouring was the earlier "teach-in" at Harvard. By comparison it was sober and, according to all reports, well-balanced. Distinguished professors such as J. Kenneth Galbraith, a former ambassador to India, analyzed the Johnson policy on Viet Nam and while Galbraith and others opposed the bombing in Viet Nam they argued the case for maintaining a position of strength that would permit a negotiated settlement.

Anne Boleyn, second wife of Henry VIII of England, was beheaded 429 years ago today—in 1536. She produced Elizabeth I, but no male heir, and her three years of marriage were not happy. Anne's unwillingness to become Henry's mistress had led to his seeking a papal annulment of his marriage with Catherine, and so contributed in part to the establishment of the Church of England. The day after Anne's execution, Henry married Jane Seymour.

Second World War: Twenty-five years ago today—in 1940—General Weygand replaced Gen. Gamelin as supreme commander of Allied armies; Hitler decreed the annexation of three Belgian provinces by Germany; Charles Lindbergh said the United States would be immune if it avoided meddling in "foreign wars."

of the war. The unilateral intervention of the United States in a small, troubled Caribbean republic has been the trigger for a more unrestrained and vociferous reaction among students.

Faculty members with whom this reporter has talked speak with deep concern of the trend of American foreign policy. They see President Johnson resorting more and more to the emotional appeal of anti-Communism to win support for his actions. As the recent past has shown, such an appeal gets a brand certain phases of the civil rights movement as Communist-infiltrated or Communist-dominated and then linking this to the anti-Viet Nam movement to discredit all student movements. It will harden attitudes, the belief is, and make it easier for the very small number of Marxist or Communist-oriented students to gain influence.

Noisy demonstrations on one side, many students feel a sense of deep responsibility to help the cause of civil rights. Four

But among serious young students there is a genuine fear of what the intrusion of the Communist issue can do to student attitudes. They are especially concerned over the effort to brand certain phases of the civil rights movement as Communist-infiltrated or Communist-dominated and then linking this to the anti-Viet Nam movement to discredit all student movements. It will harden attitudes, the belief is, and make it easier for the very small number of Marxist or Communist-oriented students to gain influence.

The memory of John F. Kennedy is still strong. This is still Kennedy country. His academic admirers speak of his American University speech calling for a peaceful settlement of differences with the Soviet Union and the nuclear test-ban treaty that followed as they ask whether the current of promise set in motion is forever cut off.

On innumerable campuses across the United States, judging by all reports, this same phenomenon is evident. The 'Government by Crisis'

My new neighbor has 19 gardens, a Cadillac, a Ford, two trucks and a barking dog. His children and the dog knock over the garbage cans and the contents are spread about the yard outside his barn. His wife and his children do not tidy up the yard. When he comes home he finds his dinner, rests, and after dark goes out to gather up the garbage. When this is done he tries to back out of his truck into the space alongside the garbage cans. He always backs into them. Every night he clatters cans and can lids, his dog barks, his truck roars and his cans roll. This clattering cans and the barking dog have become the talk of the neighborhood.

Only one subject has more conversational value around here: President Johnson's instant television appearances. The two, indeed, have begun to be lined as psychologically related phenomena.

Two of our local professors have analyzed the president's performance on each of these occasions and find in them clamorous evidence that he is a man of erratic temper, questionable stability, egocentric confidence in his incomparable charm and persuasiveness and somewhere in his psyche, a self-doubting ignoramus. They do not attempt to strike any kind of value balance between the man they describe and the Rascal of the Intellectuals staged at the University of Wisconsin when state department advocates called there to argue the case for Viet Nam policy.

But that Intellectuals' brawl was televised only once: the president has leaped before the cameras repeatedly, and the effect is interesting and it can scarcely be what he intended. The question he has provoked is this in substance: why is he rattling so many cans so often?

Over the Santo Domingo affair he made three appearances in urgent circumstances that angered the networks. He dropped out argument and information in a stumbling progress.

Following immediately upon the president's Santo Domingo telegram, came his short-noticed decision to broadcast by Early Bird a message to Europe and North America on the occasion of the twentieth anniversary of the end of the war. The American networks and Eurovision had four hours' notice of this decision and only the BBC and Italian service the speech live.

By this preplanned action President Johnson raised some serious questions concerning the relations between states and statesmen. Part of his speech was an attack on General de Gaulle and an invitation to the rest of Europe to go ahead without France, if the general would not permit his countrymen to play their part in the Atlantic Alliance.

The question that must arise is whether statesmen are now free, with benefit of technology, to pass by the governments of their allies and attempt to strike down government disagreements by direct appeals to the governed?

For Prime Ministers

An Urgent Topic

By THOMAS LAND from London

ONE of the most urgent, yet least controversial, subjects to be discussed at the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference here next month is education.

Training is the most immediate, pressing need next to food in the developing nations. Not only is it a matter of catching up with the West—it is also a question of survival in the modern world of supersonic aircraft and atomic reactors.

Mass illiteracy still persists among the Commonwealth's 700 million citizens. Vast areas of potentially rich agricultural land and mineral resources remain unexploited because of poor education: a lack of know-how.

And as a result, millions suffer from hunger, poverty and disease.

It is against this background that the prime ministers will review the developments of the third Commonwealth education conference which was held in Ottawa last year.

The conference, attended by some 200 delegates from 20 countries, had been called to improve co-operation within the organization. Its importance rivals that of the conference of Commonwealth heads of state to be held in London between June 17 and 25.

The prime ministers are likely to be particularly interested in the employment of mass media in the service of education. Developments in the use of inexpensive transistor radio sets, for example, could effectively cut down the number of teachers required and overcome geographical barriers in remote areas.

The meeting will inquire into the possibility of the establishment of a central organization for a free exchange of information and equipment. Co-operation in this field between individual Commonwealth countries could provide immeasurable help for all education authorities involved.

Such a central body would presumably function under the authority of the Commonwealth secretariat which the prime ministers have decided to establish.

The possibilities open to a central educational organization are endless. They include the setting up of printing and publishing houses in the developing countries in order to provide inexpensive textbooks; the encouragement of a two-way traffic of scholarship students attending Commonwealth universities and the opening of more teacher training colleges—to name only a few current ideas.

Yet the most persistent theme in any discussion about Commonwealth education is the chronic shortage of educators. The developing nations, still heavily dependent on overseas supply of teachers, must eventually become self-sufficient in producing their own.

The Ottawa conference has called for, and the prime ministers will probably consider new ways of obtaining further support, both in educators and in funds.

Discussions on the untapped brain drain practised inside the Commonwealth—the unfortunate by-product of the Commonwealth Scholarship and Fellowship Plan—is likely to emerge at the prime ministers' meeting as it did in Ottawa.

The question is how to induce Commonwealth scholars to turn home after completing their courses in more advanced economic and cultural surroundings.

The problem is, of course, not limited to the developing nations. Canada also loses many students every year to Britain (as well as to France and the United States). But the Afro-Asian countries could hardly afford to lose professional workers to their wealthy Commonwealth partners.

The prime ministers from these poor countries will probably seek further material assistance from their colleagues to finance educational projects at home.

And a sympathetic response by the developed countries would, in fact, benefit them as much as the recipients. It would strengthen their influence in the Commonwealth and promote goodwill throughout the developing world.

Trade with China

Tokyo's Quandary

By STUART GRIFFIN from Tokyo

JAPAN'S hopes of increased trade with Communist China this year appear to have been dashed. From Peking has come a wave of cancellations of contracts following an angry campaign against Japan's Sato administration, charging it with hostility to China and subversion to Formosa (the offshore island controlled by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek).

Blame attaches indirectly to elder statesman Mr. Shigen Yoshida, 84, four times premier of Japan since the war. Last May visiting Taipei to appease Nationalist Chinese wrath over a 1963 vinyl plant export contract by Kurashiki Rayon, with Export-Import Bank funds, Yoshida wrote to Chiang Kai-shek promising, allegedly, no further Tokyo government financing of plant exports to China on deferred payment basis.

When the Sato cabinet declared itself "bound to this Yoshida letter," Peking expressed outrage. Liao Cheng-chih, chairman of the Japan-China Friendship Association, alternately flayed the conservative Sato regime for "hostility and weakness" and ordered contract cancellations.

The trade-hungry Japanese fear loss of $3 million worth of China-bound freighters, disruption of contract talks to supply 60 integrated plants, and impairment of trade that last year at $110,382,000 ($132,611,000 exports, $157,751,000 imports) was highest since the war.

Tokyo had pledged increased imports of Chinese iron, coal, maize, soybeans and silk. Peking of special Japanese steels, insecticides, farm implements, chemical fertilizers. All seemed well until the "Yoshida letter" backfired and Peking denounced Sato's "Two Chinas" policy; criticizing, too, Japan's failure to observe its own sworn principle to separate "trade and politics."

The contents of the "Yoshida letter" have not been published despite repeated requests for "clarification" from government agencies and China. Domestic critics angrily assert that Premier Sato must scrap his policy denying China access to credits or else lose contracts to Britain, France, Holland, West Germany and even Italy and Austria who have no diplomatic relations with China, but who have integrated plants for export nonetheless.

The Socialist Opposition denounces the government as "doing nothing... ambiguous... appeasement-bound." The press echoes much of this sentiment. It also points to the June 20 Upper House election.

Premier Sato is in a quandary. He promised President Lyndon Johnson last January to "uphold" Nationalist China, to adhere to his own "Two Chinas" policy, his principle of trade separated from politics. West-aligned Japan, "equal partners with America and Europe" does not question America's role as her prime trading partner, and as the best export market. Yet Japan needs China, or thinks she does, to heighten flourishing prosperity, to demonstrate its newly-regained sovereignty, and prove its unaligned independence.

Its "Yoshida letter" once serving fence-straddling purposes, is now a home-in-the-throat. Nationalist China is appalled, temporarily, while Communist China is up in arms.

Japan must somehow convince its state funds to finance Peking trade. If it desires contracts, or lose lucrative contracts to Western Europe. The question, with Washington and Taipei, too, looking over Tokyo's shoulder, is how?

Vancouver Police Probe

Suspended Constable Now Nearly Destitute

VANCOUVER (CP) — A constable suspended without pay during an investigation into robberies here said Monday night he is near destitute.

"I've got a wife and five kids to feed. I don't know what to do," said Const. John McCluskey, brother-in-law of a former constable charged in connection with a $1,250,000 mutilated money robbery here.

"I'm looking for a job—any kind of a job—I've got to keep my family. I may have to go down to city hall and take up the matter there."

Const. McCluskey, an undercover agent in the liquor squad, was suspended April 24 by Police Chief Ralph Booth.

The suspension came five days after Const. Leonard Hogue shot himself, his wife and their six children. Chief Booth said Hogue was being investigated about possible complicity in the mutilated money holdup and several bank holdups here.

Const. McCluskey said he was told the official reason for his suspension was because he was "moonlighting"—selling houses in his spare time.

He was suspended 16 hours after the return to Vancouver of Staff Sgt. William Porteous, head of the homicide and robbery squad, who was in Edmonton to question Joe Percival, a former Vancouver police constable charged with John McDougall, a Vancouver real estate man, in connection with the mutilated money robbery here.

"Sure, I'm a friend of McDougall and Percival," said Const. McCluskey. "Percival happens to be my brother-in-law... but I've never had anything to do with it (the robbery)."

Health Board Charges
Doctor's Salary Held Up

Lee

Young

Whitbread

By A. H. MURPHY

Charges that the salary of the senior medical officer of health is being held up by City Manager Dennis Young were hurled Tuesday at a meeting of the Metropolitan Board of Health.

How is this possible, the city will be asked. The board of health budget has been passed by city council, with only minor changes, none of which had anything to do with the salary of Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread.

"I suspect that somebody is being made the goat here and I certainly don't approve," said Central Saanich Reeve R. C. Lee, chairman of the board.

SAME AS PROVINCIAL

The board of health budget provided for an increase this year for Dr. Whitbread of approximately $2,000, bringing his total salary along with all benefits and allowances to approximately $19,000. This, the doctor explained some weeks ago to members of city council considering budget figures, brought his salary to the same level as provincial medical officers doing the same work.

Members of council questioned the increase at the time, and Dr. Whitbread left the budgeting session on the understanding he would be informed of aldermen's decision.

EXCEPT SALARY

Reeve Lee said Tuesday that a letter had been received by Dr. Whitbread from James Bramley, city comptroller-treasurer, informing him that the board of health budget had been passed, with some revisions, but that the matter of Dr. Whitbread's salary would have to be taken up separately with the city manager.

"Just what authority has the city manager to withhold this salary after the budget, in which it is contained, has been submitted and approved by city council?" asked Reeve Lee.

The budget was approved without change by the councils of Esquimalt and Oak Bay. "Perhaps the city manager has some special authority, although I have seen nothing to indicate it," the reeve said.

Reeve Lee explained the background of what has become a continuing dispute between the city and the Metropolitan Board of Health.

Terms of reference for the board were set up in an agreement in 1961, the reeve said. The agreement was ratified by all parties including Victoria.

Since that time inequalities have developed in the matter of contributing to the board's upkeep.

OBJEC OF ARGUMENT

Saanich and the unorganized territory pay at the rate of about 30 cents per capita, while Esquimalt, Oak Bay and Victoria pay about $2 a head. This is the crux of the argument.

"I grant there is cause for dissatisfaction but steps have been taken to iron out this inequality. The provincial department is certainly aware of the situation and I have reason to believe that this year's budget might be the last divided one," Reeve Lee said.

DISCUSED WITH YOUNG

Dr. Whitbread said that he had talked over the matter of salary with the City Manager, Dennis Young, and had been told that no changes would be made until financial arrangements were discussed with Oak Bay and Esquimalt.

"He told me that might be this year, next year or in five years' time," Dr. Whitbread said.

Decision to ask the city for an explanation was unanimous.

A Colwood kennel owner objects to being classed with junk yards under new government regulations on land use in the Langford, Colwood and Metcalfe area.

"I'm not too interested in being classified with garbage dumps," Mike Watton, 2242 Sooke Road, said Tuesday night. New regulations published in the B.C. Gazette prohibit establishment of operations ranging from junk yards and animal shelters to junk yards and garbage dumps.

HINDRANCE

Mr. Watton, who operates a kennel for pure-bred dogs, interprets the Gazette restrictions as hampering any future plans for expansion of his kennel.

"The normal course of any successful business is to expand," he said. "Now, I don't believe I will be able to, and as a kennel owner I find the new regulations most disappointing."

BIG LIST

The list of non-acceptable uses of land are pigeries, mushroom farms, milk farms, dog-breeding and boarding kennels, animal shelters, and animal hospitals, junk yards and auto wreckers, garbage dumps and salvage yards.

According to Mr. Watton, boarding kennels provide a very useful service to a community.

"Where else can people leave their pets when they go on holidays?" he asked.

Kennels must be near a centre of population if they are to be any use to the public, he said. In the Colwood, Langford and Metcalfe area there are more than a dozen kennel owners who will be affected.

APPEAL

Anyone wishing to establish one of the prohibited businesses can go to the zoning board of appeal for a public hearing. An appeal from the board's ruling can be taken to County Court.

Shelter Keeps Busy

Contributions Rise Slowly
For Expansion of SPCA

By GEOFFREY MINIHAN

A slow but steady flow of contributions is coming in for the new facilities needed by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, executive director David Beeching said Tuesday.

"Only today we received $100 from an anonymous woman donor," Mr. Beeching said.

The required facilities include an isolation building for sick animals, a euthanasia building, exercise runs for cats and dogs, and a holding corral for larger animals.

Work on the facilities, expected to cost around $11,000, will begin as soon as cash is available.

Meanwhile, the $80,000 SPCA shelter opened earlier this month is comfortably accommodating, at last count, 18 cats and 34 dogs.

Figures change from day to day as animals are brought in and taken out by the public.

Life for anyone working in the SPCA is a busy one. Last year, for instance, the Victoria Branch answered more than 25,000 telephone calls on a round-the-clock basis.

In 1964, the society also:

● Picked up 677 animals injured on the roads of Greater Victoria.

● Investigated 886 complaints of abuse, cruelty and neglect.

● Returned 694 stray dogs and 37 stray cats to their owners.

● Found homes for 683 dogs, 384 cats, and an assortment of mice, rabbits, raccoons, hamsters, pigeons, chickens, goats, monkeys and horses.

Fat Lady, Fire-Eater . . .

Yesterday's Stars
Gone from Carnival

By GARY OAKES

The fat lady has lost 300 pounds and the fire-eater's flame has fizzled.

The sword swallower has stabbed himself, and the bearded lady has shaved.

Most of them are gone now, never to return. They are part of the vanishing breed that once starred in carnival side shows throughout North America.

Second-Rate

"They were mostly second-raters anyway," says Ralph Meeker, whose carnival is at the Jaycees fair this week.

Television is responsible for the decline and fall of the side shows, the midway boss explains, because people can see better shows at home.

Games Going

And it won't be long until carnival games are a thing of the past, he adds.

But this doesn't mean the carnival itself is fading from the scene.

"As long as there's a fair, there'll be a carnival," Mr. Meeker says. "That's where the action is."

Open Show

After 40 years in carnivals—half of the time with his own show—Mr. Meeker believes people have become better educated and won't stand for second-rate shows.

He calls the carnival games simply a retail merchandise business.

"One guy gets a bear for 10 cents and another spends 20 bucks and gets nothing—it all levels out."

Overall, Mr. Meeker estimates people recover 80 per cent of what they spend. "It's selling goods at the retail price."

On gambling itself, the 50-year-old carney boss points out "you can't beat another man's game."

In Victoria, Mr. Meeker is operating 20 rides, which cost from $5,000 to $40,000, and about 30 games. Rides will be the major part of future carnivals, he predicts.

The Tacoma-based operator hits 24 towns and cities throughout Washington and B.C. between April 1 and Oct. 1 and grosses about $500,000 a season. The carnival closes Saturday night and moves to Nanaimo Monday. It is his fourth year with the Jaycees fair.

Soft Spot

He employs between 300 and 500 people and admits he's "a little hard to work for."

But Ralph Meeker also has a soft spot.

He helped to entertain 25 handicapped children Tuesday afternoon, giving them free rides and presenting each child with a plush toy dog. A giant three-footer went to a girl who was celebrating her birthday.

$25,000 Renovations

Chez Marcel Sold
Next: Garden Cafe

Sale of a restaurant that has become a landmark in Victoria, Chez Marcel, 1730 Island Highway, has been announced by its new owner, Albert B. Bekes.

The restaurant, built 12 years ago by Mr. and Mrs. Roger Marcel Cuche, was purchased for $48,000 and is now undergoing $25,000 worth of renovations, the new owner said Tuesday.

Mr. Bekes, a government engineering supervisor in his native Hungary until the revolution of 1956, said he plans eventual development of the entire 12-acre property as a garden restaurant in the European tradition.

"I hope we will be able to open as early as May 29 but we will be open for sure by June 4," said Mr. Bekes, who has lived in Victoria for nine years and operated the Skyway Restaurant in the 900-block Government for five years.

Plans include special attractions for family dining with an area decorated as an old European wine cellar, a patio dining area for outdoors eating and special family accommodations for parties or banquets.

A special feature of the restaurant will be an expanded kitchen area with all-new fixtures and newly invented one-piece poured plastic walls and floor.

Patient Checking by Police

Still a Mountain of Tips

A mass of tips remains to be checked in the brutal slaying of 14-year-old Susan French, May 21, but so far, an RCMP spokesman said Tuesday night, there are no new developments.

A team of 20 Criminal Investigation Branch and uniform men are investigating the murder of the St. Ann's Academy student whose naked body was found in the woods near her home at 2637 Chilco.

Laboratory test results on a rope used to tie Susan's hands behind her back are awaited by the RCMP. A search for a pop bottle purchased by Susan from a cafe is being conducted. So far there are no results.

HOPE FOR CLUE

Police are hoping tests will disclose the original use of the rope.

They are also checking cars that may have been in the area at the time of the slaying.

Mr. Lawrence said the gathering was "most appreciative."

Breakwater Sought
At Sidney

Sidney and North Saanich Chamber of Commerce will ask the federal government to build a breakwater in Sidney harbor.

The chamber decided Tuesday night to write George Chatterton, MP, and enlist his support for small-craft shelter at the old government wharf.

The chamber's decision was prompted by a reported new federal policy making millions available for small-boat harbors used mainly for recreation purposes.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I am not a Bible-waving crank. I'm an average American teen-ager who wants to ask you a simple question. What has happened to decent movies?

Once upon a time movies had a plot and stars had talent. Today almost any chick with eye-popping curves (and no scruples about who sees them) can be a movie queen provided she has the proper build-up. I believe the least that can be done for the public is to let us know in advance what we are getting into.

Too many times I have taken a date to a movie which advertised as "a rollicking comedy" or a "delightfully gay and witty musical," and instead we saw a vulgar display of half nude women chasing each other around the bedroom. I am sick of bedroom scenes, bathtub scenes, shower scenes and men and women prancing on beaches with almost nothing on.

What can be done to elevate the standards of films and clean up the movies?—DIZGUSTED
Dear Diz: If enough people complain to the theatre managers (in writing) something will be done. The customer is still King.

Dear Ann Landers: At this very moment there is a terrific argument raging in our living room. My mother and dad are really going at it. Here are the facts and I'd like your opinion—fast.

My 11-year-old sister is in a play being sponsored by our church group. The kids are selling tickets for 50c each.

My parents are having a poker party next week. Mother thinks it would be all right if my sister went around the table and asked the guests if they would like to buy a ticket or two. Mom says the price of a ticket is no more than what a person would put into a couple of pots. Besides she says it's for a very good cause. Dad is violently opposed. What is your verdict?—BIG SISTER

Dear Big Sister: I agree with your Dad. It's an out and out clobber and the guests would have a right to resent it.

Dear Ann Landers: Do you think it is possible for a person to be too kind-hearted for her own good? Well right now I could kick myself for being Little Goody Two Shoes. Please tell me how to unwind this mess and I promised I will never do anyone a favor again as long as I live.

I had to leave town with my folks two weeks ago. This meant I couldn't go to the big De Molay dance so I asked my Numero Uno, Chris, to please take my cousin Beatrice, who never has a date to anything. (I even let her wear my dress!)

Well, Chris and Beatrice have been like glued together ever since. There must be a side to my cousin Beatrice that I didn't know about. She keeps thanking me for "changing her whole life." My whole life is changed, too. I'm sitting home like an old maid. Chris hasn't said anything but I expect the "nice to have known you" routine any minute. How can I get my boy friend back?—MISS NUT HEAD

Dear Miss: If cousin Beatrice was able to do such a slick job of getting Chris interested in her he must have been plenty ripe for the picking. You can't keep a guy locked up and blindfolded. If it hadn't been Beatrice it would have been another gal. Accept the realities and cast again.

Confidential to A PIECE OF MY MIND: Thanks a lot, but I don't think you should have given me the last piece. Your letter was a rare combination of bigotry and nonsense.

In the family swim... Dad sports a trim pair of swimtrunks made of bold and brawny Galey and Lord stretch plaid for lasting comfort and fit. Pint-sized daughter in this fashion photo wears a shapely cut-out suit fashioned for the younger set in stretch yarn. Bold daisy trims the small bra top around.

Realistic Work

Teen-Agers' Concern Shows in Paintings

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK
NEW YORK (UPI) — Make way for a teen-ager's view of life—circa 1965.

She wears a gas mask. The top of her hair's made of ivy. As it curls down to her shoulders, it turns into strands of the type used by the mop makers of America.

With a vision like that, who needs nightmares?

It's just art, Madame. And it's so good that it won a prize and now hangs among other student art that did the same thing.

and paint-box of Robin Barnes, 17, of Phoenix, Ore. You look at it hanging in the Hallmark Gallery in New York and then move on to other winning works of art and get a view of what goes on in the minds of top teenage artists.

The show indicates that, among other things, the teen-agers are concerned about television fatigue, the time-payment trap, car engines and thistles. No misallies.

Each work of art has won a Hallmark honor prize in the nationwide art contest sponsored by Scholastic magazine.

The work that threw a left hook at time payments was done by Charles Kupczuk, 18, of Irvington, N.J. It was a montage of various credit slogan cartoons: no money down, months to pay, easy credit. He titled the maze "Composition 13"—picking the unlucky number.

Typical of the realistic works was Bill Crosby's. The lad, 18, from Southeast High School in Lincoln, Neb., showed a bird's eye view of a broken sidewalk.

An abstract painting by Allan Jurkowski, 18, of Palmer, Mass., was titled Embryo. It looked like a mass of fine lines, blue spider webs.

The "Television Fatigue" picture, showed a youth so reclined on a couch that he seemed to be part of the couch. Lauren Erickson, of Montclair, N.J., did that one.

Don Moyer, of State College, Pa., came closest to a social commentary with his work titled "The Auction."

Among other things, it featured a fish chasing a fish—with an eye to eating same, headless woman, a headless man with a hook arm.

Leaving for a honeymoon trip to Vancouver and Vancouver Island, the new Mrs. Schafer donned a three-piece brown wool suit with accessories en trend. Her corsage was of yellow roses.

The newlyweds will make their home in North Kamloops.

PERSONAL MENTION

By Dorothy Wrotnowski

Victoria Exhibition got off to a good start on opening night, even the weather co-operating. The show, which seems to improve every year, certainly brought out the crowds on Monday evening.

One of the five judges for the Miss Victoria contest, I'll be there every night this week. And loving it.

Something new has been added this year. They have a judges' box or pit out in front of the stage. Gives a much better view of the contestants as they model fashions and during the talent performance it is even better. Before you just got a back view most of the time.

Red Rose for Luck

After the Lieutenant Governor officially opened the exhibition, the Jaycees presented a bouquet of long stemmed red roses to Mrs. Fearkes. And do you know what Mrs. Fearkes did? In a very gracious gesture, she took out a red rose for each contestant "for luck."

Melen Bierne, looking very beautiful in a slim, Empire styled blue dress with floating back panels with a gold chain and pearls entwined in her hair at the back, also had one of the roses.

Melen commented the show and remarking on one outfit, described it as a "man's favorite color" - "blue." I asked fellow judge, Bill Armstrong if he went along with this. He did but added that red and black were in there, too.

Island Hall Holiday

Mrs. D. McLellan will be here several more weeks before being joined by her husband and then they'll be off to England. Mrs. McLellan came from Bangkok and is staying with her sister, Mrs. B. J. B. Morahan. They are going up to Island Hall today for a short holiday.

For Mrs. Gilliland

The luncheon at Uplands Golf Club on Monday was to honor Mrs. H. C. Gilliland, whose husband, Dean Gilliland, is retiring this term. It was given by members of the Women's Faculty Club for their former president and they presented an orchid corsage to her. Spring flowers in yellow and blue were on the head table where the guest of honor sat with Mrs. Wilfred Johns, president, Mrs. Mahesh Taylor, Mrs. Cary Gushes, and Mrs. Reid Elliott.

National President

Dorothy Kyanston, president of the Sidney Business and Professional Women's Club, has invited me out to lunch at the Travelodge today to meet the B & P national president, Miss Nuala Dane.

Miss Dane will spend two days here and tomorrow night will be guest of honor at a dinner given by the Victoria and Oak Bay clubs. Mrs. Ronald Webster and Mrs. Geraldine Simpson, presidents, will be hostesses.

At the Marina

Dr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Melanson of Fredrickton, N.B., who were at the Empress Hotel for a few days, had a marvelous time while here.

They were seen having dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Hugh French at the Oak Bay Marina the other evening. Vernon French had just returned from a trip to Calgary.

Change of Name

Emil and Mary Michaux have returned after attending the music festival in Abbotsford and they had some not too nice things to say about the festival on the mainland. Mary, who does such a beautiful job on publicity for St. Joseph's Hospital Auxiliary events, tells me that this year the garden party is not going to be called a garden party. It will be a June Flower Tea and will be on June 2. For the past two years this annual event has been practically rained out so the group decided not to take a chance this time. However, if the weather is just too beautiful they will move everything out on the grounds.

Imported Models

Nathy Williams down at W. & J. Wilsons is going to have a busy day. Four models are flying over from Seattle, arriving about noon today. They will spend the afternoon being fitted into wood imports. All this is in preparation for a fashion show to be staged on the Princess Marguerite enroute to Victoria on U.S. Memorial Day, May 31. It will be an hour-long show and will be telecast on Seattle Station King, Channel 5 at 8 a.m. * * * * * Marlene Senanulla leaves today for Banff where she will open the W. & J. Wilson store there on May 29 in readiness for the tourist season. Sandy Jeffries, who will also be at the Banff store for the summer, will leave next week.

Other guests were Mrs. A. Walker, Mrs. D. Tyson, Mrs. P. Walker, Mrs. D. Woodten, Mrs. L. Hancock, Mrs. J. Logie, Mrs. A. Sayer, Mrs. G. Carter, Mrs. N. Tyrrell, Mrs. F. Buxton, Mrs. C. Afghanistan fashion show brings out some unusual finery as seen in this photograph.

Afghan Style

Fashion Show Wins Encore

By GLEN WRIGHT

KABUL, Afghanistan (CNS)—The first Western-type fashion show in Afghanistan's history was staged here recently with a flair that would have been acceptable on Fifth Avenue or at the St. Francis in San Francisco.

Afghan women can wear luxurious clothes with grace. This was evident when the more than 500 U.S., European and Asian women at the show demanded an encore.

Faiz M. Khairzade, manager of the Afghanistan National Institute for the Fine and Performing Arts, directed the "Exhibition of Afghan Regional Costumes." It was for women only, but the next one, this summer, will admit men. Although the experience was new to them, the Afghan girls modeled with aplomb and good humor, harmonizing well with the music and narration. One did have a complaint: the shoes hurt her feet.

She said: "I had to mark which was left and which was right, as there is not much difference. I probably marked them wrong."

Costumes representing 21 major geographical regions were exhibited. While essentially the same, they varied in detail. The basic Afghan dress, from the skin out, consists of an undershirt, pantaloons, loose overdress or overblouse and skirt, then a jacket, vest or a sort of Sam Browne belt suspended by cord from the shoulders. This is topped with a cap-like veil, sometimes held to the head by a small skull cap or headband.

Shoes are slipper-like, with pointed, up-turned toes and uppers of heavy brocade-like fabric. The shoes have leather soles.

Older women still wear the Chaudri, or over-all veil with fabric screen through which to see. The off-face veil is favored by younger women.

Favorite materials are silk, wool and satin for best and cotton for more frequent or everyday wear.

Each of the 21 culturally and geographically different regions of Afghanistan has a distinctive indigenous women's clothing style. Most feature metallic decoration and some are ornamented by literally pounds of intricately wrought silver.

The more sombre black outfits of the Kochis (nomads) and silver embroidery, fringes and sewn-on coins, further enhanced by wide, heavy necklaces, finger rings, earrings and bracelets. Some of the bracelets are so wide they appear to be wristlets.

One of the outfits was white embroidered silk with a green veil. The sleeves started from the waist. Another show stopper had a flaming orange silk veil with a pocket down the middle of the back to accommodate a long braid of hair. This was from the town of Herat.

Another, from Jalalabad, was of fine red silk. The bodice was decorated with silver coins and metal bangles and the sleeves were heavily embroidered with silver and gold threads.

All were characterized by imaginative embroidery and opulent color combinations—orange, tan and pink stripes; silver and green; gold, green and silver; black and silver; black and green; white and gold; red and green; orange and black; green, blue and red; and blue and pink.

Material combinations were wool and silk; silk and satin; wool and satin and cotton poplin.

Most of the outfits, of course, were either ceremonial costumes or special festive attire. Miss and Mrs. Afghanistan do not go about the house or street so garbed. However, the everyday outfit is the same in structure. It is of cotton or wool and gets soiled in the course of a few days wearing. Afghanistan floors and streets are principally earth. Repeated washings make the garments pretty shapeless.

The rising generation prefers Western-style dresses, suits, blouses, sweaters, skirts, bobby socks or long hosiery, tennis and flat or heeled shoes of leather, with the usual panty, bra and slip or petticoat underware.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. White, married 50 years ago in Port Alberni.

Up-Island Couple Mark Golden Anniversary

PORT ALBERNI — A Bible presented to the first couple to be married in Port Alberni's new Methodist Church, has been treasured for half a century by Mr. and Mrs. Walter White.

Close relatives attended a dinner and many friends called to offer their congratulations when Mr. and Mrs. White celebrated their golden anniversary. Some could look back to an evening in May 1915, when Lillian Davey, 17, became the bride of Walter A. White, 26, in a ceremony conducted by the Rev. S. Cook in the new church decorated for the occasion by members of the congregation.

The bride was the daughter of pioneers Mr. and Mrs. J. Davey. Her father was a mining man and brought his family here from California during the latter years of the 19th century. Lillian had been one of the first pupils in Port Alberni's first school in the former Watson Block on Argyle Street.

Mr. White, born 76 years ago in New York State, arrived in the valley in 1912 with two teams of horses to start his own hauling business.

Miss Marguerite MacLean, one of four members of Port Alberni's teaching staff, and Mr. Borden Misner attended the bride and groom at the long-ago ceremony.

According to the Port Alberni News, "The bride looked fasciating in a dress of ivory satin. She wore a veil and orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of white flowers, the gift of Mrs. Bledsoe, Alberni." Miss MacLean was attired in a dress of apricot crepe-de-chene.

A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents.

A social event, believed to be the first bridal shower to be held in Port Alberni, was held at the home of Mrs. Roy Hanna in honor of Miss Davey prior to the wedding.

First Methodist Church in which the ceremony was performed became the First United following the union of the churches. In recent years the building was sold to The Salvation Army to become the Army's Citadel.

The family dinner, to mark the couple's golden anniversary, was held in Greenwood Motor Hotel by their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Laurence White, who with their five children reside in Alberni. A son-in-law and daughter, the Rev. and Mrs. John McBride reside in Kenya, East Africa, where they have been missionaries for the past 20 years. They also have five children.

Farah to Visit Ottawa Nursery

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP)—The beautiful schoolgirl who became an empress five years ago after a storybook romance with the Shah of Iran arrived here Tuesday with her husband for a state visit to Canada.

Now a gracious, 26-year-old mother of two, Empress Farah Diba Pahlavi takes an active interest in social welfare and cultural activities in Iran, and has indicated she hopes to see children's welfare agencies in Canada.

In line with this request, government officials planning her part of the visit have scheduled visits to an Ottawa day nursery, two hospitals in Montreal and a hospital in Toronto.

The empress is the head of the Farah Pahlavi Welfare Association in Iran, which runs 50 orphanages and plans to build 12 more annually. She is president of the annual international medical congress and the Iranian Association for Protection of Tuberculosis Victims, and also contributes to many private charitable organizations.

SHAH'S THIRD WIFE

Empress Farah is the Shah's third wife. He was first married to Princess Fawzia of Egypt, but divorced her in 1950 to marry Soraya Esfandiari. The second marriage lasted nearly nine years, but the Shah divorced Soraya "with great sorrow" after she was unable to bear him a male heir.

Empress Farah and the Shah now have two children, Crown

Prince Reza, 5, and Princess Farah, 3.

The empress is a tall, dark-haired beauty who has had had an active interest in sports since her youth.

Now one of the most fashionably dressed women in the world, the empress as a girl was often seen in a girl scout uniform. She was a scout for many years and continues to support the organization in Iran.

Woodward's MAYFAIR

Max Factor reveals:
Until now even the sheerest make-up was an obvious cover-up.

Introducing the make-up that isn't there!

(except to veil every imperfection invisibly)

New UltraLucent Make-up by Max Factor

New UltraLucent fluid make-up is a transparent veil so incredibly light it could be nothing at all... and yet, so delicately balanced that flows melt away. UltraLucent works with your own skin tone to create a natural glow, 9 delicate, yet glowing tones, and 2 highlighting shades. And to fluff over all, a whisper-light powder, to capture the beauty of UltraLucent. Each $2.50

Pipelines Proposed

Prairie Pipe Lines Ltd. for a pipeline from Rainbow Lake to a gathering point further south. It is not surprising that Socony Mobil should want this line for it is perhaps the biggest landholder in the area, but it is at the same time to be noted that up-to-date only two wells are reported to have struck oil in this vast area, and one of them has been reported by the president of Banff Oil to have been abandoned.

On the face of it there was no apparent immediate need for two pipelines, let alone one, and in normal circumstances the Alberta government might have adopted a wait-and-see policy.

The fact that it has not done so indicates a fear that there might be a big extension of the Rainbow-Zama field into British Columbia. If this happened the province in first with a pipeline connection might expect to land the business for the whole field.

Indeed the Western Pacific line which runs north from Kamloops to north of Fort St. John is already much nearer to the Rainbow-Zama Lake fields than is the Interprovincial line in Alberta.

As Socony Mobil and other parties interested in the Rainbow-Zama field such as Imperial Oil and B.A. are directly or indirectly shareholders in Interprovincial, but not in Western Pacific, the anxiety of these companies to get the oil routing that way is understandable. But it poses a possible threat to B.C. oil interests in that part of the country.

'Let Us Breathe' View Royal Asks

People want something done about the Plumper Bay smoke nuisance and they want it done right away, members of the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health were told Tuesday.

So the board will speed a letter to the provincial minister of health and to federal authorities in order to get some action on the "health hazard" which emanates from the cone burner at Plumper Bay Sawmills Ltd.

"I have had letters from people in View Royal indicating that they want action in this matter," said senior Medical Health Officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread.

BATEPAYERS

"I had a telephone call from the president of the View Royal Batepayers' Association asking that this board take steps to rectify this nuisance at once," he added.

Asked if he considered the smoke and fly ash from the timber refuse burner a health hazard, Dr. Whitbread said that if it was not a hazard physically it certainly was mentally.

"People out there are upset and disturbed. It is a hazard to people's well-being—a hazard to health," the doctor said.

NO ACTION

He added that visits had been made to the owners of the mill and at least one letter sent asking that the nuisance be eliminated.

"The letter was not even answered and we were received politely and told nothing could be done. Too costly."

"It was just like talking to a brick wall," Dr. Whitbread commented.

"It looks like time something was done," said Mrs. E. P. Thomas, school district 63 representative.

"Yes, I think we had better get busy. We would be remiss in our duty if we did not," said the chairman, Reeve R. G. Lee of Central Saanich.

Reeve Lee said that representations were made last year to the provincial department of health.

The reply said the matter would be taken up inter-departmentally; but while the smoke might constitute a nuisance there was no indication that it was a hazard to health. The problem was being examined in this "industrially progressive" province.

NO ANSWER

Nothing had been heard from the province since.

Air samples have been taken in the area of the cone burner, according to a report presented at the meeting, and they indicated a large amount of ash fallout.

Mayors Urge Expand Works Program

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Bids for more federal financial aid through the winter works program and sales tax exemptions were made Tuesday at the annual conference of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities.

Mayors and civic leaders from across Canada adopted several resolutions seeking further aid in the program which subsidizes approved municipal projects as an incentive for providing employment during the winter season.

CLIMATIC REASON

They sought to establish a season which would be defined by climatic conditions and would replace the present firm starting and completing dates now established by the federal government.

A Calgary resolution seeking elimination of federal sales tax on all municipal purchases was approved. Calgary told the meeting that federal sales tax cost it $600,000 last year.

At present, neither federal nor provincial governments pay the sales tax and there are some exemptions for municipalities for road machinery, fire trucks, sewage projects and hospitals.

Mayor H. L. Henderson of Portage la Prairie, Man., said all governments should pay sales tax. He said he is opposed to going to Ottawa for "handouts."

Meat Heads Menu

Carnivorous Victorians Like It Most

By GARY OAKES

It's fried, roasted, boiled, broiled, barbecued, stewed and expensive, but mostly it's eaten. It's meat and it's Very Big in Victoria, perhaps more so than in other cities.

Living in the heart of salmon country, Victorians will trade seafood for sirloin more often than not.

ABOVE AVERAGE

No vegetable nibblers here. Victorians are apparently carnivorous and seemingly prosperous.

Across the nation last year, Canadians ate an average of 150 pounds of meat per person—and meat managers here say local residents probably topped that.

It is estimated Victorians spend better than 30 per cent of their grocery money on meat, and are fairly liberal in the selection.

BETTER QUALITY

"The public today has more money to spend," says Peter Chubak, Safeway's Vancouver Island meat merchandiser. "They're buying better-quality meat and higher-priced cuts."

Mr. Chubak said today's trend is to buy more and more boneless meat, which is "more expensive but there's no waste and it's easier to carve."

He believes the trend is a direct result of today's affluent and fast-paced society. "People just don't want to be bothered with bones," Mr. Chubak explains, and consequently they're prepared to pay the extra cost.

BARBECUE FACTOR

Both Safeway's Chubak and Woodward's meat manager Wally Woods point to the barbecuing fad as another factor in meat buying.

Beef accounts for 50 per cent or more of all local meat sales, with steaks and roasts heading the cuts.

Pork and poultry are next, with seafood, lamb and veal bringing up the rear.

MORE TURKEYS

Mr. Woods says the younger generation prefers steaks because they're quicker while their parents lean to roasts.

Islanders eat a fair amount of New Zealand lamb, he explains, mostly because it's considerably cheaper than the Canadian product, and more turkeys are eaten year-round now than even before.

How do people decide what meat they will buy?

"Mostly by taste or whim," Mr. Woods points out, "not by expense."

'FOREIGNERS' BEWARE!

Also, meat is often selected on impulse after looking through a display case.

But regardless of the selection method, great quantities of meat are bought and consumed here and foreigners,

Jack Murray, teacher, got a Scotia Plan Loan —$1800—in 35 minutes

Jack Murray had what he thought was the world's biggest pile of unpaid medical bills. Mr. Murray needed financial help in a hurry.

Jack talked his problem over with his brother and he suggested that Jack investigate the advantages of a Scotia Plan Loan. Jack dropped in on his noon hour to a Scotia branch close to his school.

He talked his money problems over with one of the helpful Scotiabank people. After a few simple questions about his job, income, and how much money he needed Jack Murray started to see his medical bill problem melting away.

35 minutes later Jack Murray had all the money he so desperately needed. Of course, this actual customer was not named Jack Murray—and not all Scotia Plan Loans take 35 minutes—the time varies with the circumstances. But there are more and more people with all kinds of names and jobs coming to The Bank of Nova Scotia to have their money problems solved—quickly. Why don't you?

How much money do you need? We strongly suggest that a Scotia Plan Loan is one of the best—most practical ways for you to consolidate your debts. With a Scotia Plan Loan the cost is low. Your loan is life-insured at no extra cost. You get the other advantages of dealing with the interested Scotiabank people. So talk over your money problem—whatever it is—debt consolidation—a new car—with the people at your nearest Scotiabank. They're ready and waiting to help you.

Answer Soon Restaurant Owners Seeking Lower-Cost Gas

Greater Victoria's gas rates will either be lowered or B.C. Hydro will give specific reasons why not.

That, in fact, was the word from Hydro's regional manager L. E. Wight Tuesday night after receiving a gas brief from the Victoria-Vancouver Island branch of the Canadian Restaurant Association.

The brief, presented by CRA president W. E. Webb and two members of his executive, is pressing for a "reduction in the commercial gas service rates" for Greater Victoria consumers.

SUPPORT

It was supported by a petition from 18 members of the Van Isle Fish Fryers Association, 10 local laundromat operators and a letter from the Victoria division of the B.C. Hotels Association.

Mr. Wight will be in Vancouver today to discuss the brief with Hydro officials. He said all aspects of the situation will be examined and promised to give the CRA a progress report within two weeks.

CRA head Webb described Mr. Wight as being "very receptive and helpful" when the brief was read Tuesday afternoon. Hydro's gas manager, K. L. Roach also attended the meeting.

DOUBLE

The brief notes Greater Victoria consumers pay about twice as much for gas as their Lower Mainland counterparts.

Based on this, the brief asks if it costs "twice as much to buy and to distribute butane gas for Greater Victoria consumers as it costs to buy and distribute natural gas for Lower Mainland consumers?"

The brief also asks if Hydro can purchase and deliver propane gas cheaper than butane and wonders if the method of purchasing butane in the Peace River and shipping it via FGE is the cheapest.

Moreover, pointing to equitable electrical rates throughout the province regardless of delivery cost, the brief asks: "Is it not possible to extend this policy on an equitable basis to gas consumers in Victoria?"

Meanwhile, Mr. Webb has promised to set up petitions in his Mayfair Cafe, 1611 Broad, to collect signatures from domestic gas consumers who want lower rates.

The most famous of all Gilbey's mixed gin drinks.

Is Gilbey's the only gin that mixes perfectly with tonic water?

We think so. And we have a sound reason to back up our belief.

Some gins have rather strong flavourings. Others are utterly tasteless. But Gilbey's London Dry has a perfect balance of flavour for mixed gin drinks.

In fact, Gilbey's dry flavour has been an international favourite since 1873. Quite a long time.

Tonic water has a delicate, refreshing taste. Gilbey's won't upstage your drink as some other gins can do.

Prove it to yourself. Tonight.

Note: a slice of lime makes an attractive garnish.

Salvia Hard to Beat

By M. V. CHENUT

I have often wondered whether the commercial growers of bedding-out plants have some kind of crystal ball for the long-range forecasting of the weather. At the time they sow their seeds, they can't possibly know whether we are going to have an early or a late spring, yet they always seem to have exactly the plants we want and on the very day we get the urge to start planting. The selection this year, incidentally, is so good that it isn't easy to make a choice.

First point to keep in mind when you go shopping for bedding plants is that you get a much more striking effect if you mass your colors boldly. A flower bed of amiable dimensions planted up mildly with, say, scarlet salvia will attract attention from half a block away. A similar bed filled with amaranths in mixed colors will be pretty enough from close up, but such a mixture creates a rather blah effect when viewed from the street line.

Speaking of salvia, this flower is pretty hard to beat when it comes to choosing occupants for those ornamental beds out front, for this plant has the unusual virtue of early and continuous bloom. Modern salvia varieties have been bred to start blooming within a week or so after planting them out, yet unlike so many of the flash-in-the-pan annuals, they keep on blooming well into the fall, with never a break all through the summer. This long-blooming habit is quite exceptional among annual flowers, and there are only a small handful of others that can come anywhere near the salvia's tireless staying power. Mind you, salvia has its faults too — its brilliant scarlet is hardly the color to go with a mellow old red brick house, for instance, and it must have full sun all day long, for in a bed that lies in shade for half the day, you get too much foliage and not enough bloom.

There are quite a few named varieties of salvia to choose from, such as Blaze of Fire, St. John's Fire, Bonfire, Hot Jazz and Scarlet Pygmy, but the chief difference lies in the ultimate height of the plant. Scarlet Pygmy, for instance, grows only six inches high, suitable for very small or narrow beds or for window boxes, while Bonfire makes a plant 24 inches tall, better suited for bigger, wider beds. Pick the one best suited to the width and general dimensions of your flower bed, and give the plants about the same spacing as their ultimate height.

For a really brilliant display of bloom, I find it pays to drop a small handful of weed mat moss in the bottom of each planting hole as the plants are set out. Peat seems to be just what salvia needs for the encouragement of a good root system. I always water my plants in while planting with a few drops of Dixon's vitamin B-1 in a bucket of water, about one cupful of the solution per plant, as this acts as a specific against transplanting shock and gets the roots off to a good start.

For an edging plant, to put a narrow, low border of contrasting color around your bed of scarlet salvia, you have quite a wide choice. The white sweet alyssum gives a lace-edged effect which is quite pleasing, but the mauve and violet varieties are not good with the scarlet of the salvia. The dark blue lobelia goes well, while yellow or orange dwarf marigolds make a brilliant and eye-catching contrast, although a bit garish for some tastes. I think my own favorite would be the hybrid ageratum "Blue Mink," making a dwarf and compact plant covering itself with soft powder blue flowers.

Ageratum isn't as long-lasting as the imperishable salvia, though, so it is a good idea to buy a package of seeds at the same time as you purchase your plants. Sprinkle these seeds between your ageratum plants in late June to keep a succession of young plants coming along as the older ones go out of bloom.

Domestic Sit-Ins Plague ART BUCHWALD

The Kiddies Are Restless

WASHINGTON — The real problem with all the sit-ins, stand-ins, teach-ins, etc., is that college students are not the only ones involved. They're now trickling down to high school and even grammar school students.

Using an umbrella, which is the nearest thing to a cattle prod that we've got, I usually manage to make them move. When they're finally dressed, we are then faced with a sit-in at the kitchen counter. Our sit-in is different than the civil rights sit-ins in that, while we're willing to serve them breakfast, they're protesting the fact that they have to eat it. If we yell at them, they scream, "Police brutality!" and leave the house in a huff.

While at our house the dogs are on the side of the pickets—and if we try to move the pickets away the dogs will growl and jump us. Some of the larger issues that the pickets feel strongly about are baths before dinner, or, on the other hand, baths after dinner, our reactionary policy against skate boards, and the fact that they have to change their school clothes before they go out to play.

It's no secret that American youth is in revolt. Even in my own family I've seen the effects of all the newspaper coverage of the various protest movements on my three children. In the morning, for example, I find a lie-in, with all three children refusing to get out of bed for ready for school.

The next demonstration usually takes place around 3:30 in the afternoon when the kids start picketing the house. They usually, do their picketing where we've just planted new grass seed or tulip bulbs. The big difference between our children's picketing and civil rights picketing is that in civil rights picketing the dogs are on the side of the police,

The final protest takes place between 9:30 and 10 o'clock at night, when they hold a stand-in in the hall and refuse to go to bed. This is the time when we would prefer a lie-in, but they insist on remaining on their feet until we practically knock them down. Once again the forces of law and order in our house are charged with brutality and an unwillingness to treat them as equals. There is no doubt that all children are being affected by the civil rights and college demonstrations and no one knows where it will end.

Just the other day my eight-year-old found out what a boycott was, and now none of the children are speaking to us at all.

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Harrison to Direct

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — Rex Harrison makes his debut as a film director in what obviously is a comedy, Don't Go Away, I Might Fall Down, from the novel by Julian Moray. Rex is a very persuasive man when he tries, and both he and producer Harry Saltzman are currently persuading Brigitte Bardot and Albert Finney to star in their film. Production is planned for November in the south of France, which will please Brigitte on account of St. Tropez being so close and I don't have to tell you she has a home there.

Linda Christian and Edmund Purdom are still squabbling about whether or not they are still married. He says yes. She says no. While waiting for a decision, Purdom is supping with British actress Adrienne Corri, estranged wife of Daniel Meehan, Ray's son. Linda is touring Paris on the arm of an oil-rich Saudi Arabian sheik. His frequent visits on her behalf to Van Cleef & Arpele have gladdened the hearts of the diamond merchants. Also Linda's.

Rex Harrison is one of the judges at the Cannes film festival. . . . Others on hand are Sean Connery and Diane Cilento, so it looks as if their reconciliation is working, which is very good news. Sean's Thunderball wound up its Jamaican location last Saturday. The interiors will be filmed at Pinewood near London. My secret agents inform me that Thunderball is bigger and even more chic than Goldfinger.

I said to Cary, "You seem to be taking your time about making another picture." It has been a year since his fine Father Goose. "I'm not rushing," Cary admitted. "When the right script comes along, I'll do it." Cary can afford to wait. He owns the negative of his great money-maker, Operation Pettcoat. Other future film negative owners include, As I told you recently, Elizabeth Taylor-Richard Burton, and also Alan Lerner and Frederick Loewe, who merely leased their My Fair Lady property to Warners for five years.

The rumors are somewhat stronger about a breakup in the Julia Andrews-Tony Walton marriage. Unfortunately, it often happens after too much acclaim for one of the parties concerned.

When I informed Cary Grant that yellow vegetables, including sweet potatoes, were simply rickety with vitamin A, which I have learned is very good for the eyesight, he said, "Now there's an interesting item. Why don't you tell your readers? Most people are interested in having healthy eyes." Then I went on to tell him that the very best thing for the eyes is liver — if you can eat it.

The Ipswich File, one of the British entries at the festival, will have star Michael Caine on hand to help its chances. Michael, a very rugged character, unlike the effete British officer he played in Zulu, starts his Alfie June 7 with Lewis Gilbert directing for Paramount. Shelley Long and Terence Stamp are also in the cast, and with two such voracious characters, I predict a few fireworks.

Anthony Quinn is returning to Hollywood in October to make the first of two scripts. The Screen of The Scarecrow for his own company. By that time, I'm sure he will be safely married to Jelanda, the mother of his two small sons.

Extracts from a letter from Madrid . . . "Young Geraldine Chaplin could not watch bullfighter El Cordobes was due in the Spanish capital later this month. She drove 100 miles to a town where the great matador was appearing last Sunday, just to dine with him afterwards. El Cordobes is now so popular that his usual fee of 1,000,000 pesetas for the afternoon, has now been raised to 1,000,000—in our money, $16,000—per bull. That's a lot of pesetas for a one-sided tumbler that lasts just a few minutes.

Driver Fled Collision But Couldn't Remember

A man who claimed he could not remember an accident on May 27 pleaded guilty to charges of impaired driving and failing to remain at the scene of an accident, when he appeared in city magistrate's court Tuesday.

Don Sprinkling, 1281 Trackwell, was remanded for pre-sentence report until May 27 and released on $350 bail.

Prosecution evidence indicated he ran his car onto the soft shoulder of Camrose and hit a parked vehicle, causing $500 damage.

When checked at 9 p.m., he was unsteady on his feet and had a breathalyzer reading of .18 per cent.

Edward G. Bissenden, 128 Newport, was remanded until May 31 after pleading guilty to a charge of impaired driving.

He was observed to be driving his car in an erratic manner on Lampson Street at 1 a.m. Tuesday, and police said he was unsteady on his feet and smelled strongly of alcohol.

The breathalyzer reading was .28 per cent.

He was released on $250 bail.

Being in a hurry on May 3, cost Victor M. Welland, 2614 Thompson, $45 when he pleaded guilty to careless driving.

Welland was clocked on radar at 45 miles an hour as he drove west on Hillside. As he left the stop sign at Cook he crossed a solid line to pass two cars, and he was then paced at 60 miles an hour before being stopped.

The offence occurred at 11 p.m.

Lynda M. McCoy, 692 Beaver Lake Road, was fined $150 when she was found guilty on a charge of failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Police evidence indicated she was proceeding south on Robertson at 9 p.m. April 15 when her car was in collision with one turning left from Ross onto Robertson.

There was $200 total damage in the accident.

Miss McCoy told police she "just panicked" and left the scene.

Strings on Parade Shows Standard Of School Work

By BERT BINNY

The concert, Strings on Parade, which went on before a fair-sized audience at Oak Bay Junior High last night, covered a lot of territory.

While it actually featured string music, with three separate orchestras participating, it also provided choral singing with an equal number of choirs and two attractive items by the Oak Bay Junior Dance Club.

SEVEN SCHOOLS

There were, by program count, 113 performers and these came from Frank Hobbs, Margaret Jenkins, Monterey, Shellbourne and Willows Elementary schools, Oak Bay Junior and Oak Bay Senior High Schools.

The music offered, too, ranged far afield and included such diverse items as an Indonesian Lullaby, an excerpt from Beethoven's 9th and another from his 1st Symphonies, The Girl That I Marry from Annie Get Your Gun, an item from Handel's Creation and another from his Water Music and Leroy Anderson's Pink, Pink, Plunk.

NOTEWORTHY

One object of the whole recital was to show the standard attained after the year's work. This being so it was evident

Six Were Killed

Lone survivor of litter of six rabbits is held by Wade Hawksworth, 4055 Cedar Hill Cross Road, after attack by dog. Mother and five young ones were killed when dog broke into pen. Wade's father hopes to have hairs left behind identified as to breed, to possibly trace attacker. — (William Boucher)

Mexican Heat Claims Babies

MONTEREY, Mexico (AP) — Monterey's annual heat wave claimed its 18th victim Monday. Three babies died of dehydration.

Living Conditions Blamed

Indians' Health Poor

Indians on reservations in this district suffer from eye, ear and skin diseases. They are sicker more often and die earlier than white people, members of the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health were told Tuesday.

The Indian affairs branch of the department of citizenship and immigration will be asked to provide money for Indian agents to do three things:

- Pipe water into Indian homes.
- Provide and enforce periodic garbage collection.
- Where possible hook up reservations to sewage systems.

Scanning a survey of eight reservations, Dr. Harold R. Carter of Oak Bay asked just how health of Indians on reservations compared with that of other people in the district.

"Well, we know Indians suffer from eye and ear conditions to a greater extent. They live in lower status-type surroundings. Skin conditions are prevalent and life expectancy rate is shorter. Indians are definitely worse off than white men," said senior Medical Health Officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread.

Morbidity (prevalence of disease) rate on reservations is considerably higher than that of white communities, said Dr. T. L. Jansch, of School District 64.

Lack of cleanliness, sanitation and overcrowding all make for a higher rate of skin disease and respiratory infections, he added.

EIGHT RESERVATIONS

"I would like to take you with me on a trip to some of the reservations," the doctor said. Reservations covered in the survey were: East Saanich, Tsaycun, Pauquachin, Beecher Bay, Sooke, Songhees, Esquimalt and Tsartlip.

The survey showed that most reservations had piped-in water, most of it from wells but that a small percentage of the homes on the reservation were hooked up to the supply.

WATER CARRIED

It indicated that a minority of homes even had taps outside their homes. In most cases water had to be carried from a central supply.

Most houses had outside privies; not all were equipped with septic tanks.

"Individual disposal" was the manner in which most homes disposed of garbage. This meant that much of it was dumped on the beach, Dr. Whitbread told members.

Vacancy Squabble May Solve Itself

Squabble between the city and the Metropolitan Board of Health over the salary to be paid to fill a vacancy on the public health officer staff may resolve itself.

would be filled at a lower rate. Everyone seemed satisfied.

The board put an advertisement in medical journals recently, and when it failed to get a reply, asked permission of Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Victoria to renew the advertisement offering more money.

It wanted to offer approximately $12,000 to $14,000 for a doctor with a public health diploma and $15,000 to $15,500 for a specialist in public health or pediatrics.

The city balked at the increased rate and Oak Bay council maintained that a specialist was not needed on the job.

Tuesday at a meeting of the Metropolitan Board of Health the chairman, Reeve R. G. Lee, said he thought the vacancy

New Power Plant

Sovereign Recrowned

The tug Island Sovereign was crowned queen of Victoria's towlines Tuesday thanks to the power behind the throne—two turbo-charged diesel engines that produce 2,400 horsepower.

The tug had been refitted during the last six months with new engines, replacing a power plant that delivered about half the power she now has at her command, said Fred Skinner, ITB marine superintendent.

The $1,250,000 conversion was made in owner Island Tug and Barge Ltd.'s Victoria yard. The change is in line with ITB policy of boosting tug power to meet the challenge of ever-increasing size of log barges, including the firm's $1,750,000 self-loader, the Island Yarder.

Together the $1,000,000 tug-and-barge team will face a brand-new towing era.

After a few hours of final painting and stores loading the Sovereign will begin Thursday night on a shakedown cruise of local runs, said Mr. Skinner.

Navy Plans Open House

The Royal Canadian Navy will stage an open house at the naval base and air-sea rescue and demolition displays at Saxe Point Park as its part in Esquimalt Day, June 26.

The Esquimalt Day committee was told a calm to commemorate the navy's 100 years in Esquimalt will be unveiled in HMC Dockyard.

It's Kiddies' Day Thursday at Fair

Victoria youngsters will be given the red-carpet treatment Thursday.

It's Kiddies' Day at the Jaycee Fair from 2 to 7 p.m. and prices have been reduced on midway rides, hot dogs and hamburgers. Rides normally three for 50 cents will cost a dime, quarter dogs will sell for 15 cents.

The hostessery will go on at 7 and 11 p.m. on the curling rink stage, with the Miss Victoria pageant at 8 p.m. and Dick Contino at 10 p.m., not 10:30 p.m. as listed in the program.

The Nook Players — Pam O'Neill and Colonel reporters Patrick O'Neill and Tony Dillon-Davis — will star in the Chekhov comedy, A Marriage Proposal, during the lunch-break entertainment at McPherson Playhouse today.

Also on the program are pianists Marilyn McArthur and Kenneth Bertram.

The tri-universities capital fund will jump $1,000 at noon today when the Victoria Real Estate Board presents a cheque for that amount to Dr. M. H. Scargill in the Empress Hotel.

Dr. Scargill, executive assistant to Dr. Malcolm Taylor, president of the University of Victoria, will give a progress report on the university.

The showing has been cancelled of the film Search Without End which was scheduled by the Capital City Club in the Dominion Hotel Friday.

A proposed referendum on new building plans will be discussed at a meeting called by Saanich school board for 7:30 p.m., May 28, in Mount Newton Junior High School.

The school board has invited representatives from Saanich, Central Saanich, and Sidney councils; PTA groups and ratepayers in the school district to take part in the discussion.

The captain of the RCN destroyer escort HMCS Mackenzie will have a special interest in 100 University School boys aboard his ship today—25 years ago he was one of them.

Cdr. Harry Wade will take the boys in the Mackenzie for a two-hour cruise of the Gulf Islands.

The roof of a house at 3250 Maple Street was extensively damaged by fire Monday after sparks from a rubbish fire next door caught on cedar shingles. There were no injuries, some water damage was done, and little personal property was lost.

Monthly meeting of Esquimalt Dockyard Branch No. 172 of the Royal Canadian Legion will be held at 8 p.m. today.

The Registered Music Teachers' Association will hold its monthly meeting at 8 p.m. today at 3571 Gibbs Road.

Trailer Rally Starts Saturday

The first trailer rally of the summer, sponsored by the Dogwood Trailer Camp of Victoria, will take place Saturday at Avarado Trailer Park at Quilcom Bay.

The event, lasting from Sunday to Tuesday, will include entertainment for both children and adults. Both members and non-members with trailers are invited to attend.

Boards Ask Tenders For Buses

Sooke and Saanich school boards will modernize their transportation systems.

Sooke school board has called for tenders for one 66-passenger bus and a 35-passenger bus; the Saanich board has applied to the educational department for permission to purchase two 73-passenger buses.

School Tenders Over Estimate

Tenders submitted Monday to the Saanich School Board for a two-room addition to Deep Cove School were found to be well over the architect's estimate and were referred to the buildings and grounds committee for study.

Architect's estimate was $37,500. Bids were Herb Bate Ltd., $42,405, and Patterson Construction, $42,718.

Four-Year Truck Pact Accepted and Delayed

Truck drivers employed by West Coast Freight of Nanaimo have voted in favor of a four-year contract offering parity with mainland drivers, but Victoria drivers have delayed a decision until May 30.

The Nanaimo pact increases the basic Island truckers' rate of $2.23 an hour by 20 cents every Jan. 1 and five cents every July 1, starting last Jan. 1 and ending July 1, 1968.

The 50 Nanaimo drivers also won a $30 weekly increase on a $40 indemnity benefit, funeral and jury duty allowances, three weeks' vacation after five years and four weeks after 14.

In Victoria, the 100 employees of Dowell's and Heaney's will set the pattern for employees of three other firms, Ideal Fuel, Capital Freightways and Alert Service.

Queen Inspects German Guard

Bonn Cheers 'Koenigin Elizabeth'

BONN (Reuters) — Enthusiastic West German crowds delayed Britain's Queen Elizabeth for 20 minutes on her drive to Brühl Castle Tuesday night for a state dinner and the most glittering social occasion in post-war West German history.

The normally immaculate royal timetable was thrown into disarray on the first day of the Queen's 11-day state visit. Crowds along the road from the mountaintop Petersberg Hotel, where the Queen and Prince Philip are staying, forced the motorcade to slow to a crawl on the way up to the castle north of Bonn.

West German leaders welcomed the Queen as she mounted the magnificent main staircase of the castle for the state dinner and reception.

Speaking at the state dinner, the Queen told the West German leaders Britain "wholeheartedly supports your natural wish for peaceful reunification."

Britain believes, she said, that Europe should be united on as broad a basis as possible.

SIGN OF TRUST

In welcoming the sovereign, West German President Heinrich Lübke said: "We regard your visit as a sign of the growing trust in our people. We believe that the German people have clearly demonstrated their determination to make up for the past."

Crowds 10- and 12-persons deep cheered the British monarch as "Koenigin Elizabeth" in this small capital city when she drove to call on President Heinrich Lübke.

TOSSED FLOWERS

They tossed flowers at her, spilled into the roadway and delayed the royal procession by seven minutes.

Police estimated that 100,000 persons—half the local population—lined the roads and streets.

Metchosin, Sooke Go 'Up-Island' in Recarved Election Map

By IAN STREET

Some radical changes in B.C. federal ridings are recommended by the electoral boundaries commission headed by Mr. Justice H. W. McInnes.

On Vancouver Island major change is confined to reducing the size of Esquimalt-Sanich constituency by adding Metchosin, Port Renfrew, Sooke and Oakville Hill districts to an enlarged Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands riding.

Changes proposed in mainland ridings, however, virtually mean redrawing the electoral map of the province.

The commission recommendations will increase the number of B.C. federal seats to 23, one more than at present, to meet population growth.

Six existing ridings will disappear and in redrawing boundaries the commission has put 11 new names on the province's federal electoral map.

Maps and detailed descriptions of boundary changes are on pages 6 through 11.

Mr. Justice McInnes declined to comment Tuesday on the changes proposed by the commission. "I do not want to make it appear that we now have closed minds on the subject, because we have not," the chairman said.

Public hearings on the proposed electoral changes will be held in eight centres across the province starting in Vancouver June 23.

The schedule includes Victoria Sept. 14, Nanaimo Sept.

20, and other dates in Vernon, Kamloops, Prince Rupert, Prince George and Nelson.

Anyone wishing to be heard on the proposed changes must make application to the commission in writing at least 23 days before the hearing date.

In the Lower Mainland Vancouver Burrard disappears and is replaced by two smaller ridings, Vancouver

Centre and Vancouver East. Coast-Capilano is wiped out with the southern urban portion of the riding becoming Vancouver North Shore.

The rest is lumped together with portions of Kamloops, Shuswap and Cariboo to form Coast-Chilcotin.

Burnaby-Cquitlam disappears and a new riding of

Increase Sparks Student Protest

Williamson

FEES 'DRIVING US TO REVOLT'

University of Victoria student leaders are planning a public meeting tonight to protest the $56 increase in fees announced by the board of governors Tuesday.

"They're driving us to revolt," said students' council president Paul Williamson.

He urged all students and interested members of the public to attend the meeting, which will be held in the Student Union Building on the Gordon Head campus at 7:30 p.m.

Dr. Taylor and a member of the board of governors have been invited to attend.

The increase jumps the fees to $400 for a year—an increase of $106 in two years.

"It's too much," said Mr. Williamson. "We've tried every reasonable approach—meetings, surveys, briefs, calm discussion. But if we can't obtain a fair deal, we're going to have to turn to other means."

NOTHING RASH

He indicated that high school students would be welcome at the meeting tonight. "We want anyone who's interested in the problem," he said.

"We're not going to do anything rash until we hear what Dr. Taylor and the board of governors have to say—but we're not happy."

ALL THE SAME

In announcing the raise, Dr. Taylor said that Uvic summer school fees would remain at $75 per course, but would be raised next year to bring them in line with the $100 charge at UBC.

The winter session fee increase was identical at all three B.C. universities. And fees remain the same at all universities.

RATE DOUBLED

UBC in addition announced $44 to $59 increases for undergraduates in other than arts, sciences and education and virtually doubled post-graduate fees.

The other universities have not these facilities which range through law, medicine or agriculture among other things.

UBC post-graduate fees will double to $900 from $422. Some 400 students embarking on graduate programs in September will pay $360 a year. But the present 500 graduate students will complete their studies under the present payment schedule of $372 for the first year plus $90 for each additional year.

REDUCED GRANT

Dr. Taylor cited a declining federal grant and increased operating costs as the basis for the fee raise. The federal grant has decreased from $210 per student to $160 per student since 1962-63.

The provincial grants, on the other hand, have increased so that even with the fee boost, the student will actually be paying a lesser percentage of the cost of his education in the coming year.

BELOW AVERAGE

This year, according to Dr. Taylor, the student paid 27.6 per cent of the cost of his university education; next year he will pay 26.6 per cent.

Dr. Taylor also pointed out that the increase must be compared with increases of $100 at McGill, $75 at Manitoba, $75 at Nova Brunswick, and $50 at Nova Scotia.

Even with the increase, fees here will not be above the Canadian average.

Calling the increase "unavoidable," Dr. Taylor said it is offset somewhat by scholarships, bursaries and loans.

"With these forms of assistance available, no qualified student strongly desiring a uni-

Labor 'Disturbed And Distressed'

VANCOUVER—The announcement of fee increases at B.C. universities drew immediate fire from labor leaders.

Jack Moore, western regional president of the 22,000-member International Woodworkers of America (IWA), withdrew his support from the tri-universities capital fund.

Secretary of the 100,000-member B.C. Federation of Labor (BCLC), Patrick O'Neil said the universities had seen fit to "penalize" students by raising fees to find money. The federation was "distressed and disturbed."

Mr. Moore withdrew from the fund drive earlier, but continued to give it his personal support.

In a letter to R. W. Robinson, chairman of the fund, he said he gave his support "because I recognized the tremendous need in this province for advanced education."

"I accepted the assurance of the tri-universities capital fund officials and university presidents that conjecture about tuition fee increases for students was based on mere rumors and were not to be accepted or substantiated."

He said many working men will be unable to send their sons and daughters to university because of the increases.

"I cannot continue to recommend, even on a personal basis, that working men and women should dig into their own pockets to help build institutions from which many of their sons and daughters will be barred because of this additional financial barrier."

Murray Drew, IWA business agent in Victoria who also withdrew from the fund some time ago, said "it is very unfortunate this has to happen in a province as wealthy as B.C."

North Viet Nam

Bombings Resume As Feelers Fail

SARON (AP) — U.S. warplanes resumed bombing raids against North Viet Nam Tuesday after a six-day halt marked by reported Washington diplomatic efforts, apparently unavailing, to nudge Ho Chi Minh's Communist regime toward peace talks.

Twenty U.S. Navy fighter-bombers and 19 F4 Phantom jets from the U.S. 7th Fleet carrier Coral Sea hit a petroleum storage area at Phu Qui, 125 miles south of Hanoi, North Viet Nam's capital. Pilots said they left the area severely damaged and burning.

DISAPPOINTED
A U.S. state department spokesman, Robert J. McCloskey, told a Washington press conference the U.S. government was disappointed at the failure of North Viet Nam to respond in any way to the suggestion.

Successful comment from North Viet Nam's foreign ministry implied rejection of the reported peace bid.

In London, senior Western officials said the U.S. had made an official approach to North Viet Nam through a third country during the halt. They did not identify the go-between.

Sure of Victory?

Junta Leader Turns Back U.S., UN Plans

From UPI, CP, AP

Santo Domingo's junta leader Maj.-Gen. Antonio Imbert Barrera, apparently confident of a military victory over rebel forces, has rejected both a reported United States plan for a coalition government and a United Nations plan for a cease-fire.

Bitter fighting continued between the rival Dominican factions in the city's downtown section, with U.S. military spokesmen fearing that a further advance by junta forces would place American troops in the direct line of fire.

One rebel spokesman has said "If the American troops appear as we will set fire to the city and leave them a Santo Domingo in ruins."

A U.S. spokesman said American officers were working with junta forces in one area, but insisted they were there only to direct fire away from U.S. positions.

Cuban Premier Fidel Castro was overheard by Miami radio to say the landing of U.S. forces in the Dominican Republic has turned into a "true political debacle for the Yanks."

U.S. action, he went on, has not only put the Organization of American States "in a ridiculous situation because the imperialists didn't even consult with them," but also has put U.S. Latin allies on the spot.

In Ottawa External Affairs Minister Martin told the Commons that an official of his department was sent to the Dominican Republic a few days ago to report regularly on the crisis there.

The United States told the Organization of American States

that President Johnson's special mission in Santo Domingo was working to establish a "broadly-representative government based on democratic, constitutional principles" and free from Communist or right-wing threats.

Big Deal Underway

Another Wheat Sale Pending with China

By FRASER KELLY
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Canada is on the verge of another huge wheat deal with Red China, it was learned Tuesday.

Officials of the Canadian Wheat Board are in Hong Kong negotiating the sale, believed to involve some 35,000,000 bushels.

It was rumored here the deal had been closed in the past three days. But an official of the department of trade and commerce said today there are still "negotiations" matters to be completed.

Under the agreement the Chinese are permitted to buy a minimum of 112,000,000 and a maximum of 157,000,000 bushels by paying 25 per cent on delivery and the rest over 18 months.

So far they have bought 107,500,000 bushels in four separate sales.

Shah of Iran

A King's Feast

OTTAWA (UPI)—Canada had to turn to Texas to find the main course for an Ottawa dinner Thursday to be given by the Shah of Iran.

The Shah, 61, his third wife the empress Farah, 28, and an entourage of 35 persons arrive here today for an eight-day Canadian tour.

Home for the Iranian royal couple during their two-night stay here is the castle-like Chateau Laurier, next door to the parliament buildings.

Hotel chef Angelo Casagrande had to reach outside the country to fill the menu for a dinner planned by the Shah for Governor-General George Vanier and other Canadian dignitaries Thursday night.

The menu calls for 25 baby lamb, and under the Shah's orders they could not weigh more than 15 pounds each.

Local sheep herders offered their best but Canadian lamb proved too pudgy—weighing in at 17 pounds-plus.

Chief Casagrande finally found what the Shah wanted at Fort Worth, Tex., 12,500-15-pound new-born lambs.

The lambs were flown here Tuesday afternoon. They will be roasted over an open flame and served: one lamb per six persons.

Lamb, explained experts here, is a basic Muslim meat, and mid-lamb—the treat the Shah will give his Canadian guests—is a choice Iranian dish.

The royal Iranian couple will be greeted on their arrival at noon at Uplands airport by Vanier and Prime Minister Pearson.

They will drive into Ottawa in a bullet-proof car which will follow them throughout the Canadian tour that includes Quebec City, Montreal and Toronto.

Fulford Drama

Gull Pro-Duck Or Anti-Eagle?

By BEA HAMILTON

FULFORD — Does one of this district's seagulls deliberately set itself up as a protector of ducks?

The question has come up along the waterfront after many people viewed a curious drama at the sea—a young gull saving the life of at least one duck by attacking a huge bald eagle.

A high wind was blowing as an adult eagle sailed suddenly down from the sky, his magnificent white head and tall flashing as he wheeled in ever-lowering circles.

He was no sooner joined by his mate when whoosh! out of the trees opposite came a small dive-bombing gull. The female eagle drifted higher and circled hesitantly over the Indian reserve, waiting for her mate to dispatch the nuisance and provide a duck supper. She waited in vain.

The big eagle almost hit the water at times during the air show near Skull Island, as he swerved away from the screaming gull. But, with the gusty northwest wind behind him, he caught the updraft each time and never lost his dignity. He tried to grab the duck several times but the gull seemed to time his diving tactics each time the duck came up for air.

Suddenly and silently, the big eagle left just as a curious raven came to join sides with the gull. Knowing there was no hope of duck on the menu, eagle and mate took the only way out of a nasty situation, melting into low-flying clouds as they headed toward theirerie at Isabella Point.

Some watchers, skeptical of the seagull's good intentions, think he was merely protecting his feeding ground. Others think he tries to upset the unshakable dignity of the majestic bald eagle "just for kicks."

Motor Hotel Due On Alternate Site

LADYSMITH — Anglo American Builders of Vancouver will go ahead with construction of its proposed $700,000 Canada House motor hotel but at an alternate site, general manager William Smith said Tuesday.

He said the original site, the Ross Hotel on the Trans-Canada Highway, had to be abandoned because his company was unable to acquire enough land near the old hotel for expansion.

He said construction will begin as soon as council approves an alternate site. This site will be discussed at the next town council meeting May 26 and the motor hotel likely will open next Feb. 1.

Mr. Smith declined to identify the alternate site. Anglo American owns the Sportsman Hotel in Ladysmith, the Marina Hotel in Campbell River, the Parkwood motor hotel at Chilliwack and the Riverside Inn in Penticton.

NEW FIRM — Mr. Smith said company president William Sips, a Vancouver businessman, announced Tuesday the formation of a new firm called British Columbia Motor Inns to administer these holdings. Future plans call for a large motor hotel at Powell River and similar ventures in the Okanagan Valley. Capitalization of the company is to rise to $6,000,000 from $4,300,000 by the end of this year.

Cumberland PTA May Be Disbanded

CUMBERLAND — The Cumberland PTA, one of the oldest such groups in B.C., is reluctantly talking about disbandment.

The PTA, which has a membership of more than 80, failed to find a quorum during a recent meeting and its annual election of officers was held over until a meeting in June. No action toward disbandment was taken at the quorumless meeting but members said the step may be forced by a serious drop in membership and interest in PTA work along with the increasingly difficult job of finding executive officers.

At present only three other district groups are actively associated with the B.C. association. The announcement of the next meeting date will be made through the student body in an effort to bring out enough members to do business.

DAYTIME AWARDS — The members on hand learned a recent amateur night, organized by Ross Gibson, made a $75 profit which completed a $125 scholarship fund.

They also learned this year's school awards ceremonies will be a daytime affair.

Goal: Larger Assessment Area

Courtenay City Council Wants Regional District

COURTENAY — City council voted unanimously Monday night to ask the provincial municipal affairs department to establish a regional district here.

Officials explained the move would be made under recently passed provincial legislation and would not mean the city would lose control of its affairs. Instead, it would provide a larger area of assessment for such things as water, garbage and hospitals.

"Someone has to lead the way," said acting mayor Sandy Strachan. "As the largest governing body in the district, I feel this was our duty."

Council sent to the regional college committee a request from Harry Harris for consideration of purchase or lease of the former Sandwick army camp. He suggested it would be ideal for a theatre-arts complex. Gary Maddess of Vancouver was named as the new city planning and approving officer, succeeding Neil Dreasen. Mr. Maddess will begin June 1 at $536 a month on a six-month trial.

Two Grant Requests

Acting mayor Strachan presented scrolls to Mrs. C. E. Ritchie and W. K. Hind, honoring their work in Red Cross and their donations of 20 pints of blood. Next clinic here will be held May 28.

A $500 cheque was received from Cumberland to help ease the Glacier View Home deficit and it was unofficially noted a $300 cheque is expected from Comox.

The finance committee was asked to consider two requests for grants, one from the Courtenay-Comox Chamber of Commerce for $2,000 as the annual city grant and the other seeking $1,000 for the July 1 celebrations.

Council named Aid. Arthur Tilbe as its delegate to the regional college advisory committee and heard Jaycees are interested in a paint-up-clean-up campaign. District schools were given permission to use Lewis Park for track meets.

Work-for-Welfare Success in Alberni

PORT ALBERNI — The provincial government's controversial work-for-welfare rule seems to be a success.

As a result, the Alberni Valley Winter Employment Committee will ask the federal labor department to supplement its winter works incentive plan with one to encourage summer employment.

The original rule was that only employables on provincial welfare rolls could be hired for projects under the federal plan.

NEVER BEEN AGAIN — National Employment Service placement officer James Speedie told the committee Monday there were instances of long-term welfare recipients who, after two winter works paydays, were never seen again by welfare officials.

Mrs. Pat Adams, of the provincial welfare staff said a number of men regarded as unemployable because of age and health showed they could hold down jobs.

"Roads and parks are needed to encourage tourism," she said. "It would seem to be good economics to continue a program, which while increasing tourist attractions, cuts down on the welfare rolls."

HIGHWAY NEEDS — The committee asked for continuation of the program in view of the fact highways projects are being curtailed here because of budget limitations.

Not only will the summer request go to Ottawa but the committee will also point out the psychological and economic advantages of a continuing program to the provincial highways department.

COMMENDED — Fred King was re-elected unanimously to head the committee. He asked John Mitchell to act as deputy chairman and the latter accepted, subject to his reappointment as pulp and sulphite union delegate.

The Cherry Creek improvement district was commended for a report showing 29 men racked up 2,637 work days on projects in the rural area including waterworks and park clearing.

Port Alberni hired 31 men for 2,580 days and Alberni 11 men for 880 days. Uchalest's projects employed nine men for 54 days and Tolino's 10 for 116.

WENT TO COURT — The picketing began Feb. 25 but was soon over, as court injunctions were issued. The case went to court March 4 and no reports had been heard since.

Now, it appears the matter was settled by recent negotiations, with the longshore union winning the right to handle assembly work. The men apparently went back to their jobs either late last week or early this week.

Peace Marchers Find

Comox Valley 'Indifferent'

COURTENAY — The people of the Comox Valley are "almost indifferent" while officials at RCAF Station Comox are "threatening the Canadian way of life," Peter Light said Tuesday.

Mr. Light, 22, chief spokesman for organizers of the Victoria-Comox peace march which starts this weekend, said he was wrong in expecting violence from the citizens.

"INTERFERENCE" — Instead, he claimed RCAF officials have told civilian and RCAF personnel not to talk to his group, give rides or help in any other way.

He called this "interference with the speech and a threat to our Canadian way of life."

Mr. Light said Comox Valley residents are "indifferent" to the cause of peace and seem only to care about steady jobs, an "insignificant factor" compared to peace.

"CAN BE SOLVED" — He said his group does not want to see economic collapse in the area. Closure of the base, which the group seeks, would cause hundreds to lose their jobs.

"This is just one of the problems we have to solve," he said. "With proper planning, it can be solved."

Effluent in Alberni Harbor

Pollution Test Nearing End

By LYNNE WALLER

NANAIMO — A group of Nanaimo scientists headed by Dr. Mike Waldichuk is nearing the end of the first large-scale water pollution test on this coast.

The Pacific Biological Station group, which includes W. S. Hyalop and A. E. Werner, is checking Alberni harbor for the degree of pollution from effluent from the MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River mill.

Figures from the two-year study are expected about the end of this year and results of the tests will be used by the federal fisheries department, which is concerned about the effect of water pollution on salmon runs.

Companies building pulp mills in areas where salmon runs could be affected comply with department requests concerning the prevention of water pollution. However, the mill at Port Alberni was operating before some of these methods had been worked out. In the Alberni Valley some waste goes directly from the mill into the Alberni Canal. During the office workers' strike a year ago the mill was shut down and local residents reported fishing in the canal suddenly improved.

Ottawa now gives income tax deductions to industry for water pollution control efforts. The testing program is designed to encourage industry to take new steps.

Scientists and technicians collect sediment from the canal bottom and gases from the water, then measure the amounts of toxic substances in them.

The Big Cut-Up

Queen Inspects German Guard

Bonn Cheers 'Koenigin Elizabeth'

BONN (Reuters) — Enthusiastic West German crowds delayed Britain's Queen Elizabeth for 20 minutes on her drive to Brühl Castle Tuesday night for a state dinner and the most glittering social occasion in post-war West German history.

The normally immaculate royal timetable was thrown into disarray on the first day of the Queen's 11-day state visit.

Crowds along the road from the mountain-top Petersberg Hotel, where the Queen and Prince Philip are staying, forced the motorcade to slow to a crawl on the way up to the castle north of Bonn.

West German leaders welcomed the Queen as she mounted the magnificent main staircase of the castle for the state dinner and reception. Speaking at the state dinner, the Queen told the West German leaders Britain "wholeheartedly supports your natural wish for peaceful reunification."

Britain believes, she said, that Europe should be united on as broad a basis as possible.

SIGN OF TRUST

In welcoming the sovereign, West German President Heinrich Lübke said: "We regard your visit as a sign of the growing trust in our people. We believe that the German people have clearly demonstrated their determination to make up for the past."

Crowds 10- and 12-persons deep cheered the British monarch as "Koenigin Elizabeth" in this small capital city when she drove to call on President Heinrich Lübke.

TOSSED FLOWERS

They tossed flowers at her car, spilled into the roadway and delayed the royal procession by seven minutes.

Police estimated that 100,000 persons—half the local population—lined the roads and streets.

Metchosin, Sooke Go 'Up-Island' in Recarved Election Map

By IAN STREET

Some radical changes in B.C. federal ridings are recommended by the electoral boundaries commission headed by Mr. Justice H. W. McInnes. On Vancouver Island major change is confined to reducing the size of Esquimalt-Sanich constituency by adding Metchosin, Port Renfrew, Sooke and Cobble Hill districts to an enlarged Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands riding.

Changes proposed in mainland ridings, however, virtually mean redrawing the electoral map of the province. The commission recommendations will increase the number of B.C. federal seats to 23, one more than at present, to meet population growth. Six existing ridings will disappear and in redrawing boundaries the commission has put 11 new names on the province's federal electoral map.

Maps and detailed descriptions of boundary changes are on pages 6 through 11.

Mr. Justice McInnes declined to comment Tuesday on the changes proposed by the commission. "I do not want to make it appear that we now have closed minds on the subject, because we have not," the chairman said.

Public hearings on the proposed electoral changes will be held in eight centres across the province starting in Vancouver June 23. The schedule includes Victoria Sept. 14, Nanaimo Sept.

20, and other dates in Vernon, Kamloops, Prince Rupert, Prince George and Nelson.

Anyone wishing to be heard on the proposed changes must make application to the commission in writing at least 23 days before the hearing date.

In the Lower Mainland Vancouver Burrard disappears and is replaced by two smaller ridings, Vancouver

Centre and Vancouver East. Coast-Capilano is wiped out with the southern urban portion of the riding becoming Vancouver North Shore.

The rest is lumped together with portions of Kamloops, Skeena and Cariboo to form Coast-Chilcotin.

Increase Sparks Student Protest

Williamson

FEES MAY LEAD TO REVOLT

University of Victoria student leaders are planning a public meeting tonight to protest the $36 increase in fees announced by the board of governors Tuesday.

"They're driving us to revolt," said students' council president Paul Williamson.

He urged all students and interested members of the public to attend the meeting, which will be held in the Student Union Building on the Gordon Head campus at 7:30 p.m.

Dr. Taylor and a member of the board of governors have been invited to attend.

The increase jumps the fees to $238 for a year—an increase of $36 in two years.

"It's too much," said Mr. Williamson. "We've tried every reasonable approach—means surveys, briefs, calm discussion. But if we can't obtain a fair deal, we're going to have to turn to other means."

NOTHING RASH

He indicated that high school students would be welcome at the meeting tonight. "We want anyone who's interested in the problem," he said.

"We're not going to do anything rash until we hear what Dr. Taylor and the board of governors have to say—but we're not happy."

ALL THE SAME

In announcing the raise, Dr. Taylor said that UVic summer school fees would remain at $75 per course, but would be raised next year to bring them in line with the $100 charge at UBC.

The winter session fee increase was identical at all three B.C. universities. And fees remain the same at all universities.

RATE DOUBLED

UBC in addition announced $44 to $80 increases for undergraduates in other than arts, sciences and education and virtually doubled post-graduate fees.

The other universities have not these facilities which range through law, medicine or agriculture among other things.

UBC post-graduate fees will double to $800 from $422. Some 400 students embarking on graduate programs in September will pay $300 a year. But the present 500 graduate students will complete their studies under the present payment schedule of $372 for the first year plus $50 for each additional year.

REDUCED GRANT

Dr. Taylor cited a declining federal grant and increased operating costs as the basis for the fee raise. The federal grant has decreased from $210 per student to $180 per student since 1962-63.

The provincial grants, on the other hand, have increased so that even with the fee boost, the student will actually be paying a lesser percentage of the cost of his education in the coming year.

BELOW AVERAGE

This year, according to Dr. Taylor, the student paid 27.6 per cent of the cost of his university education; next year he will pay 26.6 per cent.

Dr. Taylor also pointed out that the increase must be compared with increases of $100 at McGill, $75 at Manitoba, $75 at New Brunswick, and $50 at Nova Scotia.

Even with the increase, fees here will not be above the Canadian average.

Calling the increase "unavoidable," Dr. Taylor said it is offset somewhat by scholarships, bursaries and loans.

"With these forms of assistance available, no qualified student strongly desiring a uni-

Labor 'Disturbed And Distressed'

VANCOUVER—The announcement of fee increases at B.C. universities drew immediate fire from labor leaders.

Jack Moore, western regional president of the 32,000-member International Woodworkers of America (IWA), withdrew his support from the tri-universities capital fund.

Secretary of the 100,000-member B.C. Federation of Labor (CLC), Patrick O'Neil said the universities had seen fit to "penalize" students by raising fees to find money. The federation was "distressed and disturbed."

Mr. Moore withdrew from the fund drive earlier, but continued to give it his personal support.

In a letter to R. W. Robinson, chairman of the fund, he said he gave his support "because I recognized the tremendous need in this province for advanced education."

"I accepted the assurances of the tri-universities capital fund officials and university presidents that conjecture about tuition fee increases for students was based on mere rumors and were not to be accepted or substantiated."

He said many working men will be unable to send their sons and daughters to university because of the increases.

"I cannot continue to recommend, even on a personal basis, that working men and women should dig into their own pockets to help build institutions from which many of their sons and daughters will be barred because of this additional financial barrier."

Murray Drew, IWA business agent in Victoria who also withdrew from the fund some time ago, said "it is very unfortunate this has to happen in a province as wealthy as B.C."

North Viet Nam

Bombings Resume As Feelers Fail

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. warplanes resumed bombing raids against North Viet Nam Tuesday after a six-day lull marked by reported Washington diplomatic efforts, apparently unavailing, to nudge Ho Chi Minh's Communist regime toward peace talks.

Twenty U.S. Navy fighter-bombers and 10 F-4 Phantom jets from the U.S. 7th Fleet carrier Coral Sea hit a petroleum storage area at Phu Qui, 125 miles south of Hanoi, North Viet Nam's capital. Pilots said they left the area severely damaged and burning.

DISAPPOINTED

A U.S. state department spokesman, Robert J. McClure, told a Washington press conference the U.S. government was disappointed at the failure of North Viet Nam to respond in any way to the suspension.

Scornful comment from North Viet Nam's foreign ministry implied rejection of the reported peace bid.

In London, senior Western officials said the U.S. had made an official approach to North Viet Nam through a third country during the lull. They did not identify the go-between.

Sure of Victory?

Junta Leader Turns Back U.S., UN Plans

From UPI, CP, AP

Santo Domingo's junta leader Maj. Gen. Antonio Imbert Barrera, apparently confident of a military victory over rebel forces, has rejected both a reported United States plan for a coalition government and a United Nations plea for a cease-fire.

Bitter fighting continued between the rival Dominican factions in the city's downtown section, with U.S. military spokesmen fearing that a further advance by junta forces would place American troops in the direct line of fire.

One rebel spokesman has said "If the American troops oppose us we will set fire to the city and leave them a Santo Domingo in ruins."

A U.S. spokesman said American officers were working with junta forces in one area, but insisted they were there only to direct fire away from U.S. positions.

Cuban Premier Fidel Castro was overheard by Miami radio to say the landing of U.S. forces in the Dominican Republic has turned into a "true political debacle for the Yanks."

U.S. action, he went on, has not only put the Organization of American States "in a ridiculous situation because the imperialists didn't even consult with them," but also has put U.S. Latin allies on the spot.

In Ottawa External Affairs Minister Martin told the Commons that an official of his department was sent to the Dominican Republic a few days ago to report regularly on the crisis there.

The United States told the Organization of American States

that President Johnson's special mission in Santo Domingo was working to establish a "broadly-representative government based on democratic, constitutional principles" and free from Communist or right-wing threats.

Big Deal Brewing

Another Wheat Sale Pending with China

By FRASER KELLY

Colonial Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Canada is on the verge of another huge wheat deal with Red China, it was learned Tuesday.

Officials of the Canadian Wheat Board are in Hong Kong negotiating the sale, believed to involve some 56,000,000 bushels.

It was rumored here the deal had been closed in the past three days. But an official of the department of trade and commerce said today there are still "substantial" matters to be completed.

It is believed the sale involves grades four and five of Canadian wheat now selling at about $1.75 a bushel.

ODD FACT

The sale is being negotiated under a three-year agreement signed with the Chinese Aug. 1, 1963.

Under the agreement the Chinese are permitted to buy a minimum of 112,000,000 and a maximum of 187,000,000 bushels by paying 25 per cent on delivery and the rest over 18 months.

So far they have bought 107,500,000 bushels in four separate sales.

Grain Sales Threatened

CALGARY (UPI) — A. T. Baker, general manager of the Alberta Wheat Pool warned Tuesday that the threatened grain-handling strike in Vancouver and New Westminster could jeopardize pending wheat sales to China.

About 450 Vancouver area grain elevator operators have voted in favor of strike action, but no date has been set.

Shah of Iran

A King's Feast

Canada Couldn't Provide It

OTTAWA (UPI)—Canada had to turn to Texas to find the main course for an Ottawa dinner Thursday to be given by the Shah of Iran.

The Shah, 65, his third wife the empress Farah, 28, and an entourage of 15 persons arrive here today for an eight-day Canadian tour. Home for the Iranian royal couple during their two-night stay here is the castle-like Chateau Laurier,

Hotel chef Angelo Casegrande had to reach outside the country to fill the menu for a dinner planned by the Shah for Governor-General George Vanier and other Canadian dignitaries Thursday night.

The menu calls for 25 baby lambs, and under the Shah's orders they could not weigh more than 15 pounds each.

Local sheep herders offered their best but Canadian lambs proved too pudgy —weighing in at 17 pounds-plus.

Chef Casegrande finally found what the Shah wanted at Fort Worth, Tex.

The lambs were flown here Tuesday afternoon. They will be roasted over an open flame and served: one lamb per six persons.

Lamb, explained experts here, is a basic Muslim meat, and milk-lamb—the treat the Shah will give his Canadian guests—is a choice Iranian dish.
